★STARS IN OUR EYES

With STARS IN OUR EYES, we enter the large, beckoning doors of Central High, thinking of the traditions and the standards set before and of the part they will play in our future lives.

We Admire the Stars of Scholarship

Studying the various college catalogues and occupational leaflets, Nancy Staley and Charles Crutchfield, two students in the upper five per cent of the senior class, look forward to college life.

Yes, it took many long hours and unbelievable sacrifices, but Argentia Riddle, Bob Pishel, and Linda Rosenthal, gazing at their straight "A" report cards, have due right to be proud.

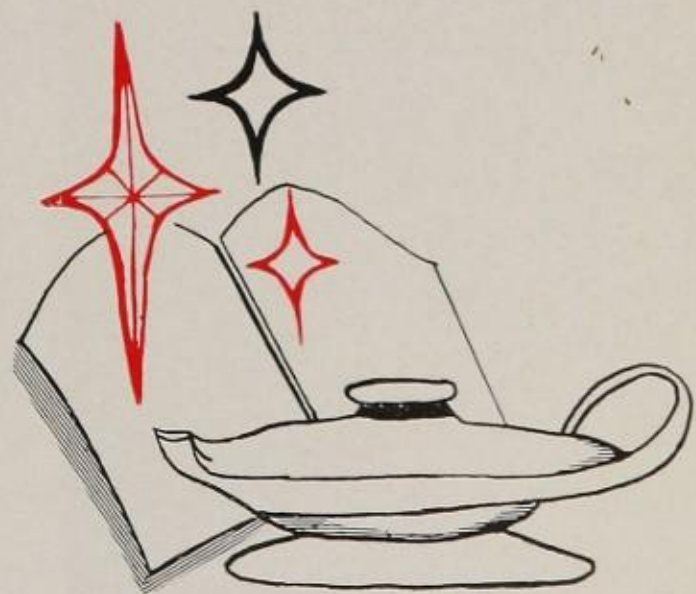

Preparing for future years, National Merit Scholarship finalists — Louise Antell, Paula Patton, Sue Clark, Tom Duckworth, Ann Ringland, Derald Glidden, Walking from the other Central High School building, Rosalind Poole, who studies distributive education, and Joe Dobson, who is studying drafting, enter the Industrial Education building at 908 South Cincinnati to start on the day's assignments.

Susie Brinnon, Linda Harrington, Bert McElroy, Bob Martinez, and Nathan Pollack—look over the various scholarship announcements provided by counselors.

Charlene Bolen, Phil Sheridan, Larry Wilson, Paulette Stewart, Tom Nicolle, Mike Dean, Pam Quisenberry recreate the nativity for the Christmas assembly.

We Appreciate the Demonstrating one aspect of culture, Suzanne Woodburn applies water color to her dress design, and Susie Burrell puts finishing touches on her drawing.

Dressed in colonial costumes, Mary Dowler and Ronnie McCurdy sing "Song of Love" for one number in a Central general assembly student talent program.

Working at the circulation desk, Madelyn Snow checks in some books as Larry Wilson and Joyce Georges look through returned books to see if they will require any mending before they are put back on the shelves.

Pert and vivacious sophomore, Sonia Hightower, being asked to participate in the assembly given to entice students to try out for the Daze, finds that hours spent in practicing the accordion pay large dividends.

Stars of Culture

We Applaud the Stars on Stage

With stars on stage and a fantasy-like merry-go-round as background, the stagecraft class makes preparations for Opera Club production of the musical comedy, 'Carousel.'

In the room for make-up, one of the most important elements of any production, Derald Glidden undergoes the application of a black Russian moustache by Betty Duerr, skillful artist.

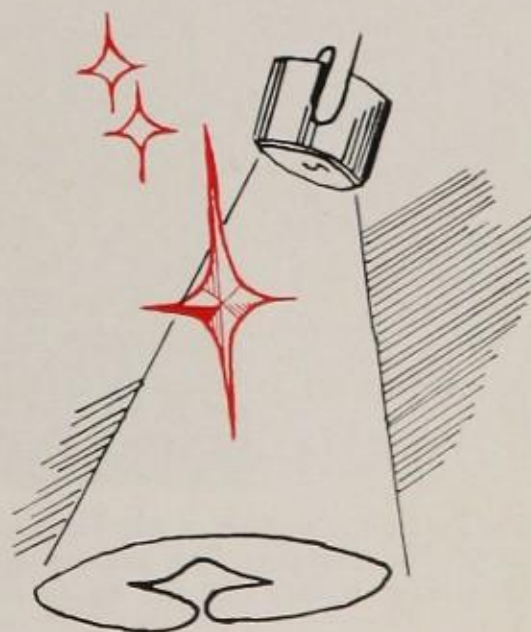

Proud of the carousel constructed for the annual musical show, Jeri Howell as Julie Jordon and David Grundish as Billy Bigelow get ready to ride the merry-go-round.

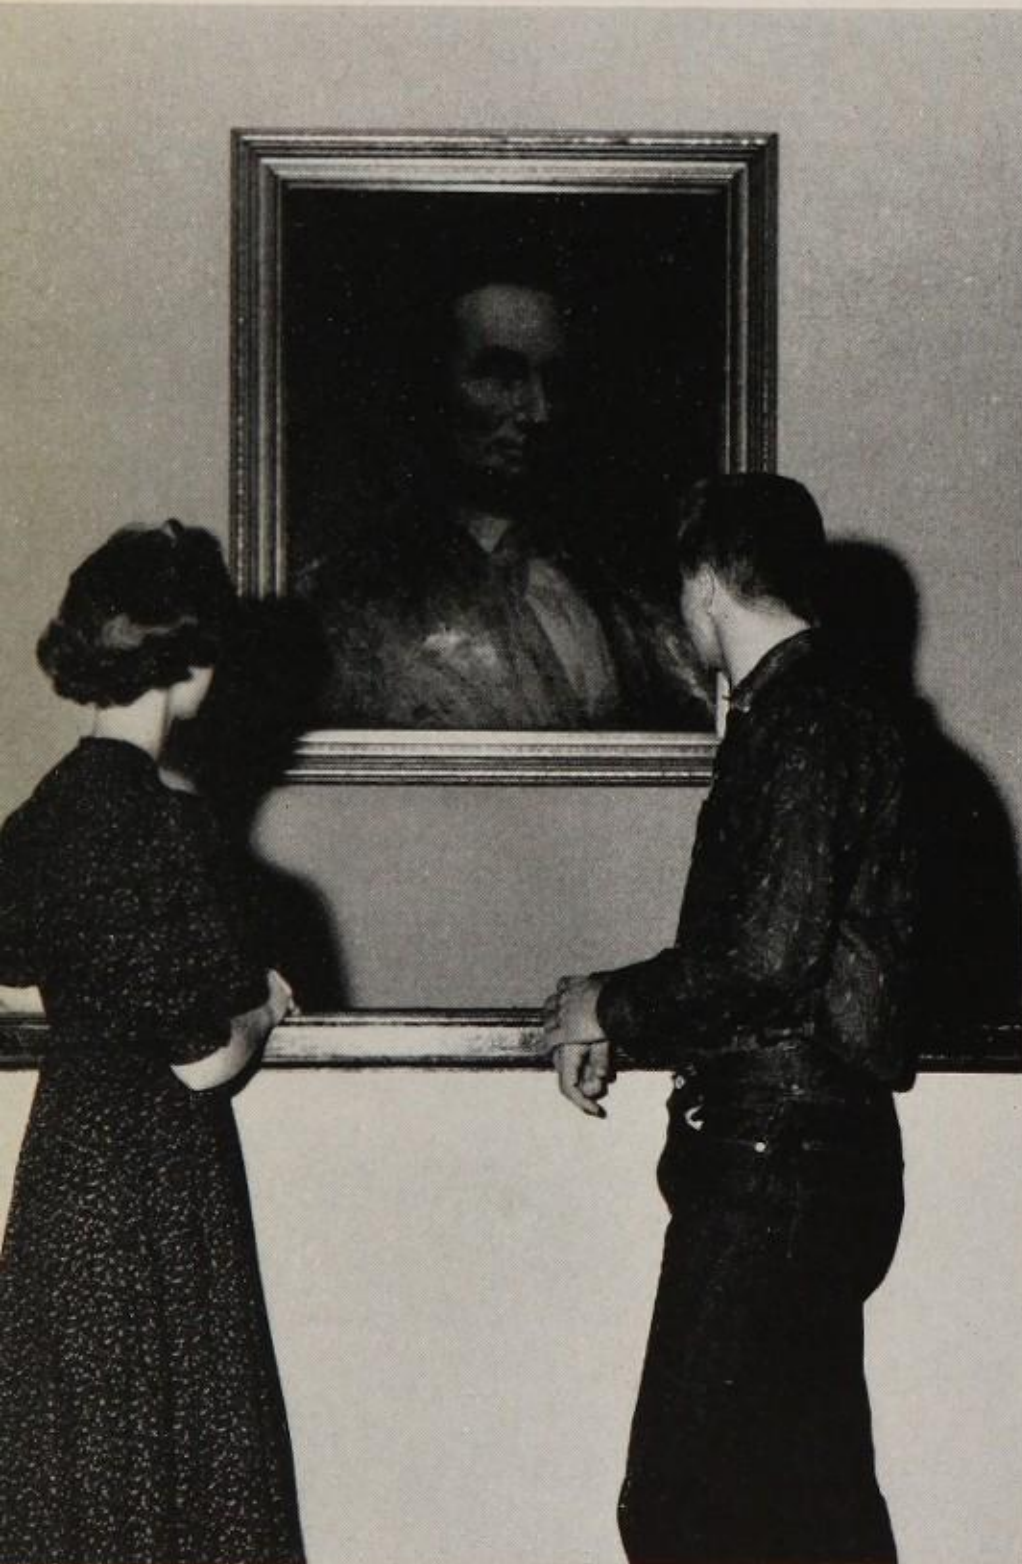

Dressed in the costume of Raggedy Ann, the doll usually loved by all children, Kathy Guy finishes an interpretive dance which she gives before the seniors at their annual Christmas party.

Portraying their leading roles in "Anastasia," senior class play, Tom Nicolle as Lonnie and Derald Glidden as Petrovin try to calm the desperate Diane Erbert as Anastasia.

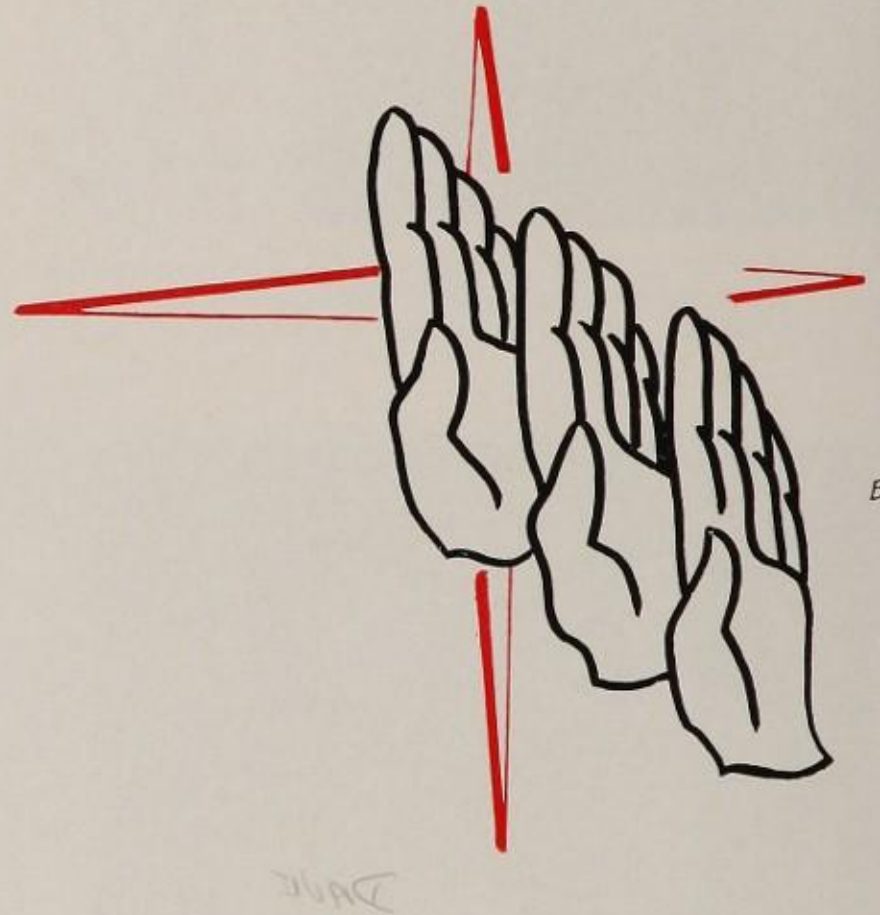

Studying and visiting in the front hall before school, Harry Bailey, Betty Gandy, Ada Birge, and Jerry Murphy exemplify many friendships formed among the students.

Standing before the portrait of Abraham Lincoln, known as Honest Abe, Margaret Elzo and Jim Speaker, good friends, wonder if they can live up to his standards.

Being helpful in a friendly sort of way, Bill Mier, loaded with books, and Linda Grimes explain to one of their fellow seniors, Gro Hillestad, foreign exchange student from Oslo, Norway, what life as a student at Central will be like and what books she must carry to school daily to keep up the usual assignments.

Central High School, largest high school in Tulsa, opens its entrance to an eager group of prospective sophomores, who have been impatiently waiting to gain glances at what lies behind the doors and who are wondering about their future successes.

We Cherish the Stars among Friends

Comprising Central's color guard, Paul Lester, Jack Caine, Joel Bullard, James Hopper, David Laughlin, and John Conwell stand at attention while saluting the flag of the United States of America, showing respect and loyalty for their country.

We Praise the Stars of Loyalty

Central High School marching band, under the direction of the drum major, Don Boyd, forms a large C.H.S. at Skelly Stadium during the football contest against the Nathan Hale Rangers.

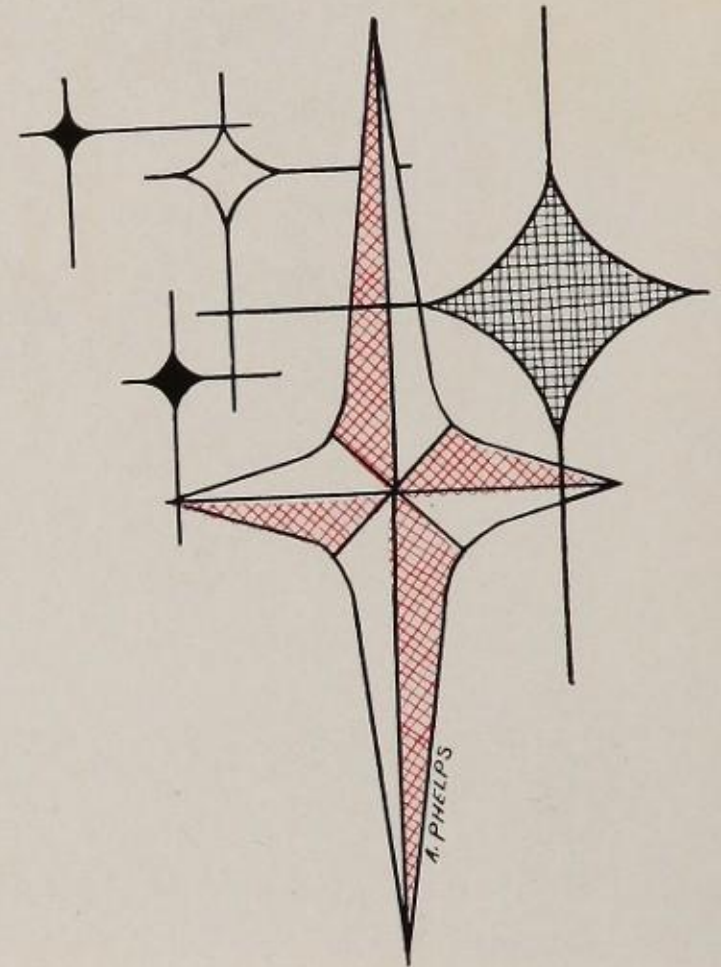

Before the onslaught of students enrolling for the 1960-61 school year, Jeri Howell tacks up a Central banner on the large WELCOME sign in the main hall.

"I believe in the United States of America," recites Sylvia Jessee, sophomore, who leads the students in "The American's Creed" at the general assembly.

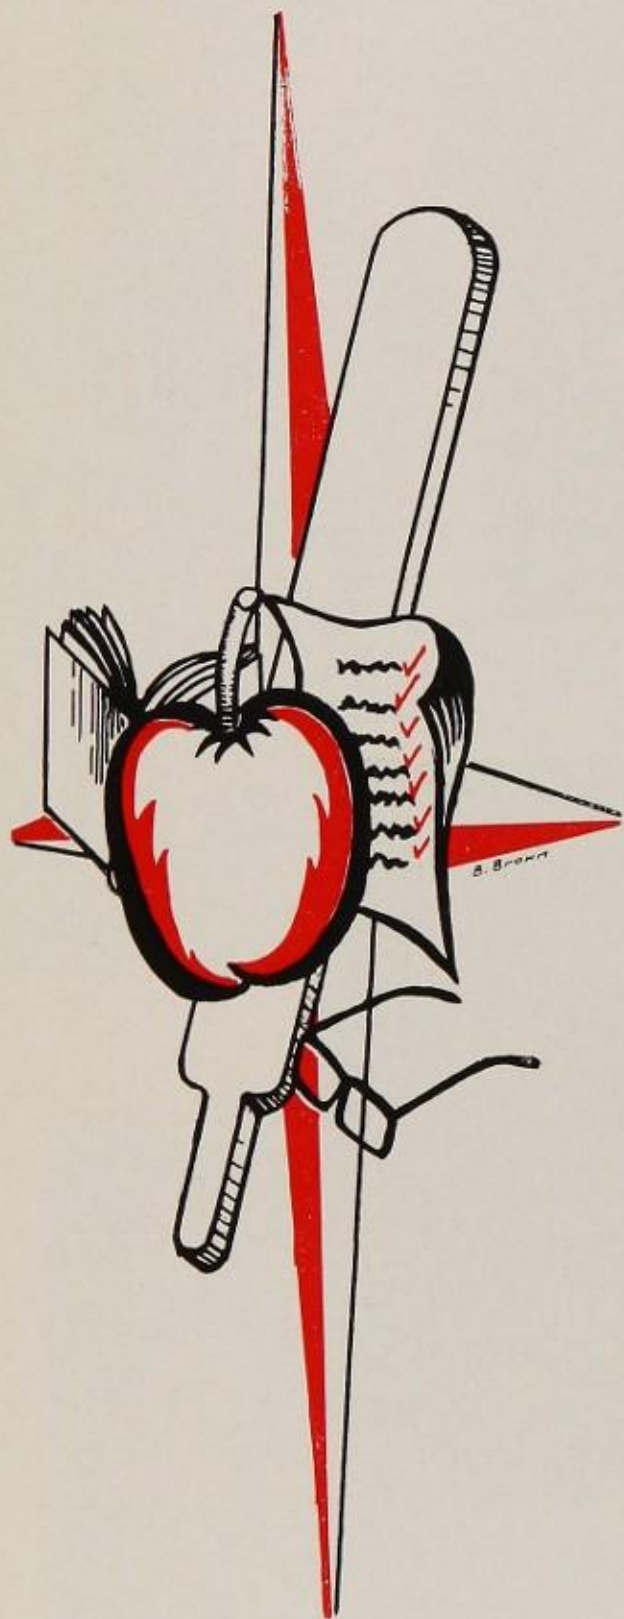

Gazing at the bronze statue in the hall, "The Appeal to the Great Spirit," which has been traditional, Don Roberts and Jeanne Kishner dream of days gone by.

Art Department Perpetuates Heritage Of Culture

What would life be like without art to appreciate? This question could well have been the one the Art Department, headed by Miss Opel Thorpe, asked as it made plans for the year. To insure the perpetuation of ever-coming artists, the instructors developed five courses—form design, interior decoration, painting, costume design, and applied design. Third year classes spent part of their time on art work for the Tom Tom.

Music Department Promotes Appreciation Of Music

Music brings into life what can never be achieved through other means. Excellent performances were a result of good training. There were several divisions in this department: a cappella choir, girls' chorus, Treble occasion. Bob Martinez, Shirley Cox, Carol Miller, and Wanda Speir admire the crepe paper dummy, created to give fun and entertainment and filled with secret "goodies."

Tones, Opera Club, cadet and concert band, orchestra, and theory and harmony. The Music Department provided enjoyment and cultural development for both the participants and the audiences.

Foreign Language Aims Toward World Communication

Students enrolled in foreign language classes had a definite advantage over the students of previous years, the language laboratory. This new laboratory held thirty-six student positions that were connected by a telephone system through which the instructor could speak individually with the student, thus eliminating speaking errors.

Students in French and Spanish classes learned to speak these languages fluently. The Latin classes, as well as the Spanish and French, learned the customs of the countries studied through the use of tape recorders, movies, and film strips.

Mrs. Velma Reves, chairman of the foreign language department, said that there were approximately 550 students enrolled with four teachers.

Business Education Offers Valuable Opportunities

V. B. Hawes
Department Chairman

Of rising importance in the world is the understood necessity for business education. Courses offered at Central were filing and indexing, shorthand, transcription, typewriting, business arithmetic, bookkeeping, secretarial typing, business machines, business law, office practice, secretarial bookkeeping, and clerical training. A course of co-operative office training was offered to selected seniors chosen by the co-ordinator, Mr. V. B. Hawes, who was department chairman.

The courses offered in business education are valuable not only to job-seeking students but also to college-bound students.

Business education is personally helpful to everyone in keeping personal records, completing tax returns, and understanding fundamentals of business laws and consumer problems.

Busily typing on the new electric typewriters with the ever-handly dictionary nearby, Sandra Williams and Carole Bray, members of Mr. V. B. Hawes' cooperative office training, advanced shorthand, and transcription classes, finish a project on time while preparing themselves to be good secretaries in the rapidly rising field of business.

Preparing girls for stenographic work, Mrs. Charlotta Felible, instructor, gives dictation to Cynthia Davis, Shirley Griffin, and Susan Mackey, who have spent many hours studying to learn the correct methods of writing shorthand characters.

Hoping to achieve the coveted "brownie points," Sharon Baker gives a red apple to her teacher, Mrs. Eanid Bottenfield.

To improve the techniques of reading, writing, speaking, and listening was the main objective of the English Department. All classes stressed grammar, spelling and vocabulary, outlining, sentence structure, punctuation, composition, and book reports.

Sophomores began the year with a unit of orientation and then pursued a course in American literature. In the junior year the classes surveyed English literature. This study included Macbeth, Idylls of the King, and A Tale of Two Cities. Senior English was divided into two semesters, one of composition and one of literature. Masterpieces of American and English literature or of world literature were studied.

Students with creative ability or special talents in the language arts elected creative writing, speech arts, Tom Tom, or School Life. Others wishing to improve chose developmental reading.

Study Of History Brings Past Events Into Present

Since a good knowledge of past events will help the student to understand the happenings of today's fast moving world, the history and social study courses, under department head, Mr. James Mitchell, endeavored to give each student a solid foundation in the many fields of history.

All sophomores were required to take United States history, which gave the pupil a better understanding of America's heritage. In their junior and senior year the students could take world history, ancient and medieval history, Oklahoma history, or consumer economics. For seniors planning to go to college, modern history and government and economics were offered. Community history, with emphasis on the value of effective citizenship, was another senior elective.

Mathematics Serves In Development Of Alert Minds

To teach students the fundamentals of mathematics and the applications of them to every day life, the members of the Mathematics Department worked under the guidance of Mr. W. B. Wise.

Basic mathematics emphasized the four fundamental operations of arithmetic. Those recommended followed algebra with plane geometry. Intermediate algebra, valuable for college-preparatory courses, was taken usually by juniors. Students interested in mathematics, in engineering, or in other technical fields as a line of study in college took solid geometry and trigonometry.

Homemaking Leads In Teaching Basis For Living

The Homemaking Department, under the direction of Mrs. Ora Mayberry, adequately taught and gave to the students a basis for living. Personal Development helped to give the students a much better understanding of themselves and to establish a more satisfying relationship with others, such as family, friends, and anyone else with whom they may come in contact.

Clothing trained the students in many fundamental skills of sewing and in planning of a wardrobe. Foods taught the planning, preparation, and serving of meals with emphasis on the health of the student and her family. Home Nursing instructed the students in the care of the sick, child care and development, and also personal and community health. Home Management emphasized and helped to solve problems concerning the organization of a home.

Industrial, Vocational Arts Furnish Guided Training

Elmer Mabry

To give students an opportunity to explore the field of industry and merchandizing, the Industrial and Vocational Education Department, housed in a well-equipped building two and one-half blocks south of the main school, offered 22 courses taught by 11 instructors, whose chairman was Mr. Joe W. Lemley.

To learn the basic principles, students could take auto mechanics, drafting, electricity, machine shop, woodwork, leathercraft and jewelry, photography, and printing. Anyone who had his teacher's recommendation and who wanted to become skilled enough to earn a living at the occupation enrolled in vocational courses.

Others started earning money through the on-the-job training programs—diversified occupations and distributive education. Students in these programs took the required academic courses at school during one-half day and work the other half.

Using facilities made available to them by the Tulsa public school system, vocational auto mechanics pupils—James Hix, David Hart, and Johnny Bozarth—under the able direction of instructor, Mr. Roy R. Trimm, exercise their knowledge and ability with the Allen Power Tuner by giving a complete first class tune-up on Mr. Trimm's 1959 Chevrolet.

David Grundish finds it unbelievable that the guitar-strumming physics teacher, Mr. Fred Bennett, is explaining sound waves.

Fairly well established is the fact that with the application of science, almost every problem can be solved. The Science Department, headed by Mr. Felix Vestal, surely considered this thought when it decided to add to the seven science courses already offered—biology, geography, chemistry, geology, physiology, psychology, and physics—two new ones, physical science and advanced physical science. With these nine courses, the students were offered a wide field from which to choose.

In addition to the two new courses, many of the classrooms were redecorated to provide for new laboratory equipment. The Students had the finest facilities with which to work. Also, Central had a reunion with a former student, Mr. Fred Bennett, who came back as a member of the teaching staff.

All boys were required to take a year and a half of physical education. A variety of courses were offered. A large portion of each class was devoted to calisthenics to develop muscular co-ordination. Swimming for beginners was offered to those boys who could not pass a test.

Also offered were touch football and cross country—first quarter; basketball and wrestling—second quarter; swimming, physical fitness, and wrestling—third quarter; and tennis, track, and softball, all outside sports—last quarter. For boys proficient in any sport, sixth hour athletics was provided. From this class Central's winning teams were developed. All coaches were in the gym to instruct and train the boys in the fundamentals of each sport.

Coach William C. Lantz, head of the boys' physical education department, directs a physical fitness class in the daily calisthenics routine consisting of push-ups, situps, berpes, gripping, flutter-kicking, knee-bends, side-straddle-hop, back-arching, and many other difficult exercises to develop stronger muscles and better muscular co-ordination.

Relaxing tight muscles before beginning the techniques of the strenuous but enjoyable modern dance, the girls who participate in Mrs. Wanda Newton's physical education class warm-up with an exhausting exercise, which practiced regularly will co-ordinate the parts of the body and therefore help to produce self-required limberness.

New Activities Benefit Physical Education Classes

Along with the ever-popular sports, plus the modern dance program and the individual posture improvement classes of Miss Madeleine McDonald, chairman of the department, two extra activities were added to the Girls' Physical Education Department.

The girls learned the fundamentals and the strokes of golf in the regular gym classes and then went down to Central Park, where a three-hole course had been set up. Advanced swimming proved to be a favorite also. The life-saving course produced approximately twenty more life savers than in previous years. Needless to say, physical education definitely forms an important part of any well-rounded school program.

The school library was one of the best in the Tulsa public school system. Under the direction of Miss Helen Hagler, the library proved to be not only a place where almost any book desired could be found, but also the quietest spot for students to go to study.

From approximately 22,000 books in the library, the staff checked out over 40,000 volumes to students. Some were overnight reference books; others two-week ones. The large number of books circulated indicates the use that students made of the facilities.

Special Education Offers Help To Students

With the recent installation of eight new Aetna Drivotainers, a new era in the program for driver education was started. This set-up under the teaching of Mr. Chuck Bowman provided for the students a better opportunity to develop proper driving skills.

Many Employees Needed For Well-Regulated School

To keep a comprehensive high school moving along smoothly, the board of education must employ many people besides the teaching staff. The 14 members of the clerical staff served as secretaries for the principal and vice-principal, kept scholastic records for every student, prepared daily bulletins, answered hundreds of questions, and did myriad other tasks.

Checking on the health of Centralites were the school nurse and the matron. To see that no one went hungry, six full-time and 23 part-time cafeteria workers prepared food for students who queued up in four lines during their 30-minute lunch period.

On the maintenance staff 26 adults were responsible for keeping the building clean and comfortable. Open daily, the bookstore maintained an ample quantity of school supplies.

CLASSES

After the results of the American College Test taken on November 5 were made known, Mrs. Sydney Powell, counselor, discusses with Kitty Holloway the meaning of the test scores.

Miss Bernice Tomlinson, class sponsor, takes a moment of her daily routine of planning class activities to reminisce about senior accomplishments by reading past issues of "School Life."

Seniors Close Curtain On High School Activities

Mr. Paul McCloud, counselor, studies questionnaires used for college recommendations which he must complete for seniors in the last half of the alphabet.

After waiting long years to fulfill the many activities of the senior year, Mike Long and Reva Gaines examine samples before ordering their announcements.

The curtain has drawn over act three of the high school career of the Class of 1961. Led by Janet Earlougher, president; Robert Pishel, vice-president; Sharon Richardson, secretary; and Sue Clark, treasurer, the senior class will long be recalled. Royalty occupied the stage when Suzanne Hendrix, attended by Janet Earlougher and Paulette Stewart, was crowned Miss Central High XL.

Famed for their selling talents, the seniors broke all previous records with the campaign for their class play, Anastasia. February found the stage set for Frank Fox, Kelly Raynolds, and Glenn Sharp, King Daze candidates. As the curtain made its final swish, the seniors gave the future students a mobile library.

Senior class cabinet members—Janet Earlougher, Robert Pishel, Miss Bernice Tomlinson, sponsor, Sharon Richardson, and Sue Clark—set the pace for Senior Week by checking over the lists for the various committees. These cabinet meetings are often held in the cafeteria so that breakfast may be enjoyed along with the hard work.

Faithful until the finish late in the afternoon, nine eager seniors, who volunteered to decorate the Christmas tree, begin to see the result of their labors. Every year a week before the Christmas holiday season, a beautifully decorated evergreen, always a-glitter with tinsel and lights, is a wonderful gift of the senior class to the entire student body.

Mrs. Mary Louise Simms, counselor, devotes much time to helping juniors prepare for graduation by solving their academic problems, interpreting test scores, and giving guidance.

Miss Rachel Blackburn, junior sponsor, inspires Gene Blevins to work for the penguin symbol for three hundred per cent in ticket sales for the class play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Junior Class Completes Successful, Rewarding Year

Mrs. Lorna Stenger, junior counselor, in one of her moments of leisure thinks of the hundreds who look up to her for advice in their many school problems.

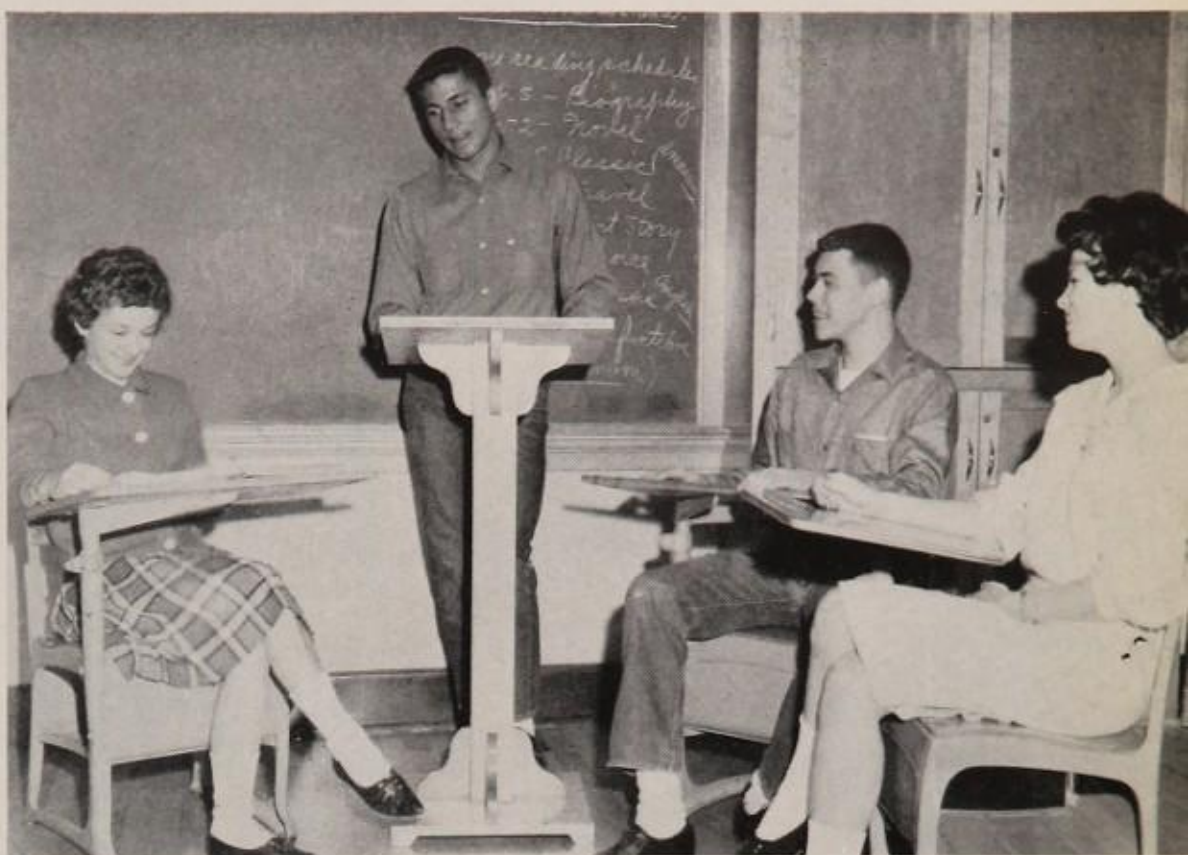

Junior cheerleaders—Linda Newton, Martha Barhydt, Ray Hunt, and Earl Hamm—enthusiastically lead the junior class in cheers at all Central sports events.

Under the guidance of the newly-elected officers—Jerry Hill, president; John Redman, vice-president; Carol Armstrong, secretary; and Toni Howard, treasurer—the junior class began the year by selecting its queen attendants. Junior attendants to Queen Suzanne were Roberta Mozier, Toni Howard, and Wanda Nightingale.

In November the juniors reached success with their class play, The Man Who Came to Dinner. As their senior year drew nearer, the juniors began to look forward and to plan ahead. In January their senior rings were ordered, bringing them one step closer to their goal. In gratitude for the help they had given the juniors sponsored a faculty coffee.

During one of their weekly cabinet meetings, officers of the junior class—Carol Armstrong, secretary; Jerry Hill, president; John Redman, vice-president; and Toni Howard, treasurer—discuss and plan the ticket campaign and sales for their play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," one of the most exciting events of year.

Making one of the most important decisions of their junior year, that of selecting their senior rings, members of the ring selection committee—Bill Rose, Phil Sheridan, Mike Smith, Luann Williams, Jim Savage, Cora Johnson, Pam Quisenberry, Larry Grindstaff, Ruth Ann King, and Martha Barhydt—carefully examine and appraise each of the various types and sizes available to them. Juniors, who will order their rings in February, will get them near the end of May.

In a ceremony during the opening junior class assembly Wanda Nightingale, retiring president, presents the gavel, symbol of leadership, to Jerry Hill, presiding officer who was elected by his classmates last spring.

Helping the sophomores plan their high school curricula, Mr. Aubrey Baer and Mrs. Erskine Stanberry, class counselors, spend many hours reading college bulletins sent to the school.

Giving the sophomores many helpful hints for class projects and assisting in carrying them out, Miss Mary Ellen Bridges, sponsor, finds there is never a dull moment in her schedule.

Sophomores Set Pace With Leadership and Enthusiasm

During A.F.S. week Mr. Eddie Sutton's homeroom gave the privilege of throwing a pie in Joe Staires' face to the highest bidder in the class, Beverly Johnson.

Sophomores frequently find themselves in hilarious and unusual predicaments. Sharon Patton proves to be no exception as she can-cans out of a waste can.

With the arrival of the class of 1963 came many new and spirited ideas. To start the year off right, Susan Schwend, Jean Blackburn, and Diane Brown were elected as attendants to Miss Central High XL.

As football season progressed, class cheer leaders—Linda Staton, Lillie Fox, Jim Fehrle, and Jim McNabb—proved their worth to the squad and prepared for the winter sports.

Not to be outdone by any other class, sophomore officers—Joe Staires, president; Harry Chichester, vice-president; Alberta Wright, secretary; Gary Dunegan, treasurer—strove for higher goals. The annual sophomore cookout given at Owen park was held in November.

Newly-elected officers—Alberta Wright, secretary; Gary Dunegan, treasurer, Harry Chichester, vice-president, and Joe Staires, the president—busily make plans for their Christmas project, "Operation: Sophomore Santa Claus," in which food collected in homerooms during December will be distributed to needy families in Tulsa.

Food! Food! Food! and more food. Winding up a tremendous Christmas project, the sophomores proved their class pep and enthusiasm by collecting all kinds of non-perishable food for needy families in Tulsa and presenting it during class assembly to a jolly, round Santa Claus better known as Mr. Clarence Ehlers and his reindeer, Jim McNabb, Lillie Fox, Jim Fehrle, and Linda Staten. Before the arrival of Santa members of the class gave a talent show.

Noted for confusing the 'up' stairway with the 'down,' sophomores find the trait a hard one to shake off. Not helping the reputation of the class, Lon White and Charles Hewlett are caught in the act by Wilda Woodford.

ORGANIZATIONS

In a brain-storming session to aid Kelly Raynolds in planning the various activities slated, council cabinet members—Susie Brinnon, Martha Hamaker, Mary Caroline Miller, Richard Watson, Tom Duckworth, Miss Faye Laird, sponsor, Muffy Davis, Janet Earlougher, Ann Ringland, Tom Deal, and Gro Hillestad, exchange student from Norway, use imagination to make this year's A.F.S. program the best.

Active Student Council Sparks School-Wide Efforts

Student Council, highest student authority in school, gave Centralites the opportunity to practice democratic methods of good government. The membership of the council was made up of sophomores, juniors, and seniors representing their home rooms, six members-at-large, and the cabinet. Every student in school had the privilege through his home room representative to express his opinion, to give suggestions for the betterment of his school, or to initiate new ideas.

Many and varied were the projects of the council, who began its work for the school year when the students were enrolling the week before classes started in September. "Howdy" name cards were written for all who went through the enrollment line, and incoming sophomores were given conducted tours of the building.

Not many weeks later an assembly program was presented at which time the members and the officers of the council were formally introduced to the student body, and the symbols which denote the spirit of Central were explained.

One of the most-used products of the council was the directory, Hello Central, in which was listed the name, address, and telephone number of every student in school. These directories sold for 35 cents each.

Other money raising projects included selling Central book covers and pennants.

Almost everyone entered into American Field Service Week with enthusiasm. At this time council members made a concerted effort to raise enough money to bring two foreign exchange students to Central next year and to help send the school's representatives abroad this summer. Twenty-five cent stocks were sold. A Saturday night dance, when Hardworking Student Council members serve Central every Christmas with a school post office. As she prepares to deliver the numerous cards of season's greetings to the awaiting home rooms, Mary Carolyn Miller, one of the mail carriers, receives her share of morning post from Martha Hamaker, Richard Watson, Tom Deal, and Susie Brinnon.

In an effort to raise funds for the American Field Service goal of sponsoring two foreign exchange students next year, members of the Student Council give students an opportunity to ride on the carousel for only a dime.

Spotlight Shines Upon Students Who Have Achieved

participants dressed in foreign costumes, was held. Some teachers were persuaded to present the Faculty Frolics, always a laugh for students. Since A. F. S. Week followed the presentation of the musical comedy, Carousel, the merry-go-round used in that performance was available for rides at ten cents each. When the accounting was made, the council had achieved its goal of bringing two foreign students to study next year.

To honor sophomore and junior boys and girls for service and for scholastic achievement, the spotlight committee put pictures of those chosen in a bulletin case. Another honor was earned by seniors when they were chosen by the council as boy-of-the-month or girl-of-the-month. These students competed with representatives from other schools for a four hundred dollar scholarship to be presented by Tulsa civic clubs.

Before Christmas the student body looked forward to the post office erected in the main hall. Here anyone for a small fee could "mail" cards to friends at Central. The postmen were kept busy sorting and distributing mail during the rush before the holidays.

As Daze time approached, council members directed traffic at the bank on the first day that students were permitted to get reserved seats. Some helpful ones took a holiday morning to clean the trophy room and get the trophies gleaming for visitors to see.

The officers of Student Council, who under the supervision of Miss Faye Laird, sponsor, directed all of these activities, were Kelly Raynolds, president; Richard Watson, vice-president; Ann Ringland, corresponding secretary; Carole Ann Davis, recording secretary; Tom Duckworth, treasurer; and Mary Carolyn Miller, parliamentarian; and four inter-school council representatives — Susie Brinnon, Janet Earlougher, Martha Hamaker, and Tom Deal.

Advertising Board Continues Informing Centralites

Keeping the school informed about all special events, President Tom Deal and Secretary Mary Jane Gallup hurry to complete a poster.

Sell, sell, sell was the theme for the 1960-61 Advertising Board as they promoted the speech arts plays and the Opera Club's production, Carousel. This advertising organization also kept the school informed about events by operating and maintaining the electric sign in the main hall.

Mr. Barney Ratzlaff, sponsor, had unusual ideas for promoting selling, such as offering great prizes for the most sales and selecting teams to see which would be victorious. Demonstrating a job well done, the members of the Advertising Board accomplished a great feat by outselling the productions of any previous year on the fall speech arts play, Stardust, since Green Grow the Lilacs, which was a drama presented in the fall of 1955.

The hard working officers were Tom Deal, president; Susie Brinnon, vice-president; Mary Jane Gallup, secretary; and Alvin Kruse, treasurer.

Dramatic Arts Cultivated By Thespian Troupe 817

Living up to their motto, "Act well your part; there all honor lies," the National Thespians Society, Troupe 817, promoted the dramatic arts on the secondary level. The members presented to a student audience three plays — Balcony Scene; Thank You, Doctor; and Suppressed Desires. During the year they also participated in every dramatic event—class plays, speech arts plays, musical comedy, Daze, and assemblies.

Two of the pleasures of the cabinet were to initiate eligible students to Troupe 817 and to install a new troupe at Nathan Hale High School. Planning the weekly Monday morning meetings under the direction of Mrs. Iona Ballew Freeman, sponsor, were David Rhodes, president; Larry Wilson, vice-president; Martha Hamaker, secretary; Nancy Staley, treasurer; Ruth Ann King, scribe; and Mary Carolyn Miller, historian.

During the Christmas holidays the troupe held open house at the home of Martha Barhydt.

Students' Speaking Abilities Developed By Bureau

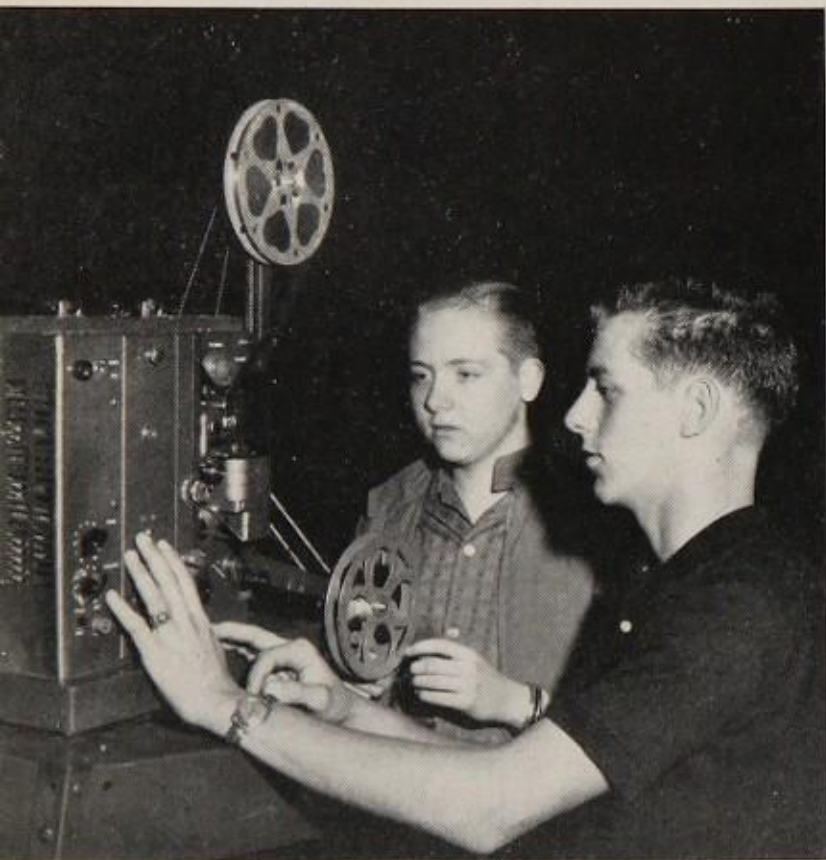

Speakers' Bureau, one of two speech organizations, was open to juniors and seniors who were willing to write a speech and try out before the members. The purpose of this group was to give members the opportunity to learn and develop good speech skills.

Officers of the bureau—Diane Erbert, president; Mary Horner, vice-president; Shirley Low, secretary; and Barbara Johnson, treasurer—led the group in interesting activities. At one of their club meetings, each member was allowed to pull from a hat a topic for a three-minute impromptu speech. At another meeting Mr. Russell Charles gave a talk on John Brown's Body. For Christmas the 24 Bureau members presented The Littlest Angel to the Children's Medical Center. The Lottery, a one act play, and a program of American Folk lore were presented in general assembly on March 3 for the enjoyment of the entire school. Also in March, Sharon Richardson won the city-wide My True Security Contest.

Mary Emery, narrator, helps John Woodruff, Michael Smith, Mary Horner, Shirley Low, and Pam Quisenberry in their tryouts for Christmas play, "The Littlest Angel."

Projection Club Expedites Audio-Visual Program

Terry Cole and Gerry Strickland, members of the Projection Club, work side by side preparing a projector for the showing of educational films to the various classes.

Boys and girls of the Projection Club were busy people. More than just running films, they did other jobs—showed slides in assemblies, and managed and cared for the audio-visual equipment.

Meetings were held every Thursday morning during home room, where the projectionists talked not only about the films and the equipment, but also about the various problems which they encountered. They discussed these questions with Mr. Albert Martin, sponsor, and searched for the solutions to them.

The club members gained a valuable knowledge about film care and about the operation of different types of projectors. They also received one-half credit for each semester of work. The president of the club was David Hardy.

Central's extensive audio-visual program would not have been possible were it not for the members of Projection Club. In fact there would have been mass confusion to try to find someone who was qualified to run a film projector.

Stagecraft Organization Sparkles With Originality

Perched on high ladders, President Bob Thomas and Phil Weaver hang a spotlight in the fly loft for the annual Student Council assembly.

With tools in hand, the capable stagecraft club displayed their talents by designing, preparing, and working scenery and sets for Central stage productions. Under the direction of Mr. Albert Martin, the club added much color to the presentation of all school performances on the stage, working up sets that appealed to the audience.

During the past year, Bob Thomas served as president, Trudy Hargis as secretary, Phil Weaver as scenery manager, Jerry Harrison as properties manager, and Ronnie McCurdy as lighting manager. The club met daily on the stage.

The Daze presented the toughest problems for Stagecraft members. The beautiful scenery was the reward for many hours of work after school. Not only scenery was important but correct sound, lighting, and co-operation were necessary to complete the production.

Cooperative Program Equips For On-The-Job Training

Young men enrolled in the diversified occupations class automatically became members of the Trade and Industrial Club. This cooperative program, open only to juniors and seniors who qualified, was designed to give boys on-the-job training in industry as well as to provide means to complete graduation requirements. Students attended school half day and worked half day in occupations or trades of an industrial nature.

The 32 members were led in their endeavors by Bob Lewis, president; Kenneth McKinley, vice-president; Jerry Blevins, secretary-treasurer; Mike Cline, sergeant-at-arms; and Mel Buckner, reporter. Mr. Richard Kisner was the sponsor.

Besides the school requirements and work experience, the boys found time for social affairs. Before a fellow could truly be a club member, he must have been initiated. To this ceremony, which was held during October in the back yard of Mr. Kisner's home, the boys brought their dates. In the spring they gathered for the annual picnic.

Toiling industriously, Johnnie Rogers, diversified occupations student who works a half day at Ramsey Winch Company, applies his acquired skill at a machine making ring gears.

Central Senior Presides Over D.E. Clubs of State

At the Tulsa Book and Record Shop where Carolyn Henderson and Jeaniece Morris receive training, the girls fill the display racks.

Comprised of 23 members, the Distributive Education Club was affiliated with the nationwide group which had 21,000 members. Held each morning, meetings were governed by Carol Henderson, president; Steven Holmberg, vice-president; Sally Russell, secretary; Coy Ward, treasurer; John Kincaid, parliamentarian; Patricia Read, chaplain; and Nancy Evans, editor of the DEC news. Speakers from the various fields representing the units which the group was studying came to the meetings.

Twenty-eight clubs met in Tulsa, March 5, 6, and 7, for the state-wide convention at which time Lee Lane, senior, was elected to the presidency of Oklahoma Distributive Education clubs.

The Central group supported two important civic projects—outside of work and school time they sold $100 worth of candy for the March of Dimes, and they filled 65 Junior Red Cross gift boxes for needy children overseas.

Board of Directors Regulates Expenditures of Funds

Examining the many lists of expenditures in previous years, Gini Kirkland, Anna Willhite, Derald Glidden, and Susie Brinnon, board members, check the amounts.

The Nineteenth Legislature of the State of Oklahoma (1943) passed a bill providing rules and regulations establishing and governing Boards of Control for Student Activity Funds. The Tulsa Board of Education instructed all schools to form boards which would have complete control over all student activities' money.

Central's Board of Directors was composed of ten voting members—Mr. M. M. Black, principal; Mr. Don Slagle, assistant principal; Mr. W. B. Wise, Mr. James Mitchell, and Mr. Barney Ratzlaff, faculty members; Mrs. Sydney Powell, senior counselor; Gini Kirkland, sophomore; Anna Willhite, junior; Susie Brinnon, senior; and Derald Glidden, Student Council representative—and two ex-officio members—Miss Joyce Saunders, office manager; and Mr. Charles H. Orr, treasurer of student activity funds.

The Board of Directors met on the first Monday after the tenth day of each month to adopt policy, approve the activities' calendar, distribute the activity budget funds, and establish admission prices.

Board of Directors of Activity Funds—Seated: Susie Brinnon, Mr. C. H. Orr, Mr. M. M. Black, Miss Joyce Saunders, Mrs. Sydney Powell. Standing: Gini Kirkland, Anna Willhite, Mr. Don Slagle, Derald Glidden, Mr. James Mitchell, Mr. W. B. Wise, Mr. Barney Ratzlaff.

International Club Introduces Members To World

To plan a future meeting on an international theme Mary Emery, Lou Pittman, Betty Kidwell, Kitty Holloway, Dorothy Williams, and Jeannie Koch think of subjects for discussion.

With the definite purpose of enlightening its members to the happenings of the world, the International Club began the year by electing officers. Serving on the cabinet of President Mary Emery were Betty Kidwell, vice-president; Lou Pittman, secretary; Dorothy Williams, treasurer; Jeannie Koch, parliamentarian; and Kitty Holloway, social chairman. Miss Margary Pike sponsored the group, which met semi-monthly after school on Tuesdays.

Providing excellent meetings, foreign exchange students studying at Tulsa public schools came to meetings and presented informative programs. Tulsa students who went abroad on the American Field Service program also spoke of their travels at meetings. Panel discussions on current affairs were another interesting activity.

Starting a tradition, the members had a cookie sale at the A.F.S. dance, with the profits going to the fund to bring next year's foreign exchange student. The club also made a substantial contribution to the CARE program.

Historical Group Erects Markers at Indian Cemetery

Studying the history of the city of Tulsa and of the state of Oklahoma was the main purpose of the Tulsa Historical Society. This active organization consisted of those students enrolled in community history classes.

Each year the society has undertaken to investigate some item of local or state history and to record it for posterity. The club has gained national recognition with these projects and their additions to history.

The group this year decided for its project to erect a historical monument at the Perryman family cemetery. This Indian burial ground, located at Thirty-second Street and Utica Avenue, had been neglected through the years.

Those who served as officers were Frank Cervantes, president; Mae Crouch, vice-president; Jan Kennedy, secretary; Wanda Stayathome, treasurer; and Rose Johnson, senator. Mrs. Edith Daugherty sponsored the group.

Pinpointing historical markers throughout the state, members of Tulsa Historical Society—Jack Hopkins, Jan Kennedy, Wanda Stayathome, Mae Crouch, and Frank Cervantes—plan visits.

As the result of a trip to the office of Mr. Charles E. Norman, city attorney, Rose Johnston and Pat McLaughlin are sure that they will get much needed information for the project to fence in the historic Perryman Cemetery.

On a recent excursion to the well-known Perryman cemetery, located at South Thirty-second Street and Utica Avenue, Johny Summers, member of the Tulsa Historical Society, pauses for a moment as he approaches the marker of Mr. George B. Perryman, once distinguished Creek Indian cattleman and one of Tulsa's first businessmen.

Students of Today Look Toward Careers In Teaching

Mrs. Barbara Schwabe, sponsor, Pat Parrott, Sue Clark, and Letha Trammell look at the issue of "The Oklahoma Teacher" which has a picture of Sue as state vice-president.

Students of today—teachers of tomorrow. Looking toward careers in teaching, students joined Future Teachers of America to prepare for their vocation. The members gained valuable experience by assisting in a teacher-aid program, which lightened the work of the instructors.

The meeting of the Oklahoma Educational Association held at Oklahoma City proved both worthwhile and enjoyable for all who attended. On an observational tour of Hale High School the members noted many modern features of the new building. The discussion of mutual problems with other clubs was the objective of F.T.A. Day held at Tulsa University.

Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Barbara Schwabe, the club enjoyed Bar-B-Que parties and other activities. Programs, which were interesting and educational, consisted of talks by teachers and other special guests.

Officers were Mary Lloyd Apple, president; Letha Trammell, vice-president; Linda Grimes, recording secretary; Muff Davis, corresponding secretary; Barbara Moore, historian; Carol Henderson, librarian; and Virginia Doty, treasurer.

FHA Attended by America's Homemakers of Tomorrow

To fulfill a club project, Teenage Consumer, Carolyn Faulkner made the yarn octopus she is showing to Celia Maxwell and Phyllis Garner.

American families will be in good hands when the Future Homemakers of America become adults. In the past year, this group of girls, led by the officers—Gladys Stephens, president; Phyllis Garner, vice-president; Betty Robinson, secretary; Jan Kennedy, treasurer; Mary Morrison, reporter; Celia Maxwell, historian; and Mae Crouch, parliamentarian—fulfilled many of the activities recommended by the national association. The officers were installed by the Bixby High School group with the official red-rose installation.

As an individual club project, the members made little items, such as yarn octopuses and decorative kitchen accessories, and sold them as gifts for Christmas. In completion of one of the district projects, Gladys Stephens presided over the sub-district planning meeting which was held in Jenks, Oklahoma, September 27.

As a final activity, the chapter took a trip to Oklahoma City for the state rally.

Medico Club Encourages An Interest In Medicine

The purpose of the Medico Club was to encourage and promote an interest in the many fields of medicine by presenting distinguished speakers, making trips, and viewing films.

The club had prominent Tulsa doctors who came to speak about their particular sphere of medicine. Among these were Dr. James E. White, an orthopedic surgeon; Dr. Howard A. Bennett, an anesthesiologist; and Dr. James W. Kelley, a plastic surgeon. Films which were shown were Susan's Wonderful Adventure, Red River of Life, and Louis Pasteur, Man of Science. In October many of the club members took a trip to the Medical Research Foundation in Oklahoma City.

Presiding over the weekly meetings was president, Bob Martinez. Other members of the cabinet were Carol Reynolds, vice-president; Marylea Walker, recording secretary; Phyllis Wood, corresponding secretary; Nancy Tracy, attendance secretary; and Joyce Webb, treasurer. Co-sponsors were Mr. Aubrey Baer and Mr. George Dorsch.

Dr. Myra Peters, prominent Tulsa bone surgeon, explains an operating procedure for the wrist bones to Carol Reynolds and Bob Martinez; but Oscar, the skeleton, does not care.

Busy and useful are the words used to describe members of the Junior Red Cross led by Kitty Holloway, president; Angela Eppler, vice-president; Linda McSpadden, secretary; and Maryjane Geiger, treasurer.

All through the year their time was spent helping those in need. The filling of gift boxes was a project in which the whole school took part with each home room doing its part. The earnings from the paper drive were used to buy magazine subscriptions for the Muskogee Veterans' Hospital. During the spring a city wide windshield-washing campaign was held to advertise the blood bank. Members who washed car windows left a card asking people for donations. Talent shows were given at the Muskogee Veterans' Hospital, the Children's Medical Center, and the Home for the Aged. The cast which was made up of Central and Washington students; brought joy into the sometimes dull life of those less fortunate people. This worthwhile organization and its sponsor, Miss Jewell Ramsey, did much to further brotherhood.

Key Club Donates Service To School and Community

President Dick Williamson proudly displays to officers—Bob Pishel, George Peru, and David Richardson—a newly awarded plaque received by Key Club and its members.

Key Club, a high school service club for boys which was initiated by Kiwanis Interantional, was counseled by Mr. Jack Orme, faculty sponsor, and Mr. John Meyer, Kiwanis sponsor. Any Central boy was eligible to apply for membership, but final selections were made on the basis of citizenship, leadership, scholarship, and willingness to serve the school.

Projects of the group were taking tickets in the south auditorium at all school productions, co-sponsoring the faculty-varsity basketball game, participating in the March of Dimes, conducting the annual Lenten chapel service, being in charge of the safety program at Central, and helping community volunteer groups. Highlighting the social activities, the club had a semi-formal dance at the Hotel Tulsa, where Ann Wait was honored as the first Key Club sweetheart.

Every Tuesday at 7 p.m. the members met in room 216. Over these sessions Dick Williamson presided as president. He was assisted by George Paru, vice-president; Bob Pishel, secretary; and David Richardson, treasurer.

Camarata Club Assists At Many School Activities

During one of the moments when the south auditorium is not in use, Beverly Hanson, Ann Wait, Judy Megee, and Carolyn Orr grab the opportunity to review ushering skills.

Plays! plays! plays! Camarata members were always on the ball and ready to usher for the many plays that Central put on—speech arts and class plays, the musical comedy, and the assemblies. They also assisted at the P.T.A. reception for teachers and at the Back-to-School night.

The Sweetheart Dance given by the Key Club in honor of the Camarata Club, established a new tradition at Central. It is to become an annual affair. Ann Wait, senior, was chosen as the Key Club Sweetheart.

Another social function of the club was the annual spring tea which was held in the home of Beverly Hanson. It was given for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the new members and new officers for next year.

The 1960-61 officers of Camarata included Beverly Hanson, president; Ann Wait, vice-president; Judy Megee secretary; and Carolyn Orr, treasurer. Mrs. Wincel Hurt and Mrs. Thelma Berggren were the sponsors.

Fran Jackson learns that one of the many problems faced by a yearbook editor is choosing which pictures will be used and where each one will be in the "Tom Tom."

Busy were the 16 student members of the Tom Tom staff and their adviser, Miss Ruth Holton, as they worked toward the aim of a completed yearbook. Had someone asked one of the staff members to "Take me to your leader," the questioner would probably have been received by Fran Jackson, editor. The position of business manager was ably handled by Marilyn Stilwell. Judy Megee served as secretary.

Work began in September when section assignments were made to various staff members. The actual work started with the gathering of pictures and the writing of cutlines for the various divisions. In addition to scheduling and taking the activity shots and writing cutlines and body copy, the staff members also helped the photographer with the taking of junior, sophomore, and organization pictures. Bedlam ruled over room 101 when the all-too-eager seniors met there to perform the task of signing their pictures.

When there were deadlines to meet, staff members found it easy to keep going by remembering how pleased the pupils and faculty would be upon receiving their yearbooks.

Art Staff Captures Theme of 'Tom Tom' In Drawings

Tom Tom would not be so striking as it is without the creative work of the art staff, made up of nine hard-working seniors chosen by their adviser, Mrs. Esther Clark, for their ability in art.

After the theme, Stars in Our Eyes, was chosen, work began on cover designs. Yearbook staffers and faculty board members judged the one submitted by Jerry Harrison the best. Then ideas for the opening section and the division pages had to be put on drawing paper. This creativity gave the students a chance to practice good commercial art techniques. Suzanne Woodburn's color of the entrance to Central High School added to the beauty of the yearbook.

Finally all designs were drawn to scale and sent to the engraver before Thanksgiving, and the hurry and scurry of meeting deadlines was over.

As their work for the Tom Tom was completed during the first semester, art staff members were allowed to work on individual problems and prepare for scholarship competition second semester.

Glancing over "Tom Tom" cover design ideas drawn by the art staff. Kay Rogers, Don DeJarnette, and Dorothy Williams, see that choosing a winner is a hard decision.

Journalists Write and Edit High School Newspaper

Distributing newspapers to Duke Barham, members of Central "School Life" staff—Paula Patton, Marylea Walker, and Tillie Scott—carefully give the correct number.

Meeting deadlines each week kept the Tulsa Central School Life staff busy. Each of the seven members had a special job to do and accomplished his task quickly and efficiently.

The seven Tulsa High Schools—Central, Rogers, Webster, Edison, Nathan Hale, McLain, and Booker T. Washington—combined forces to publish the Tulsa School Life, which was a weekly paper, distributed every Thursday morning.

The paper consisted of the latest news from the seven schools, feature stories, editorials, cartoons, sports write-ups, and pictures.

One of the most frequently read columns of the paper was the Tom Tom Beat, written by the two-some, Tillie Scott and Paula Patton. They listed many of the small happenings at Central.

At Daze time the entire front page was devoted to the show, featuring pictures and stories of plans, rehearsing, and work that went into the performance of the Daze of Enchantment.

Miss Anna Crotchett, newspaper adviser, had a busy time keeping things moving smoothly throughout the year.

Advanced Class Lights Way To Scientific Knowledge

In class, industrious students, Bob Lindsey and Charles Kruchek, experiment with a titration of acids and bases in a volumetric analysis.

With emphasis on science the Advanced Physical Science students lighted the way to a better understanding of both scientific knowledge and the world around them.

A.P.S. was composed of seniors who had shown both an interest and a high aptitude in previous science classes and who were enrolled in physics and solid geometry-trigonometry. The course was designed to give a wide range of study on a more advanced plane, particularly in the fields of chemistry and physics, with an emphasis on all pre-engineering aspects.

There was an increased stress on laboratory experimentation this year. The program was two-fold. One division was the regular class work, including analysis of known and unknown solutions of the metallic cations. The other was a paper based on actual scientific research.

Under the constant guidance of Mr. George Hall, instructor, the members of the class learned the scientific method of approach to problems.

Members Acquire Appreciation of Art

Interesting meetings, sponsored by Mrs. Esther Clark, held the attention of Art Club members and helped to further their knowledge of art. At one meeting Mrs. Elsie Gubser, nationally known weaver and also writer for Hand Weaver and Craftsman magazine, presented a talk and demonstration before the group. The officers—Jerry Harrison, president; Barbara Moore, vice-president; Mary Lloyd Apple, secretary; and Onieda Keith, treasurer—led the group in their search for a greater appreciation of art.

Spanish Club Helps Speaking Ability

The purpose of the Spanish Club was to enable its members to improve their speaking ability and to promote interest in the culture and customs of the South American and other Spanish-speaking countries. The Christmas fiesta was one of their main programs, and the high point came when they broke the pinata. Serving as president, Jose Cervantez was assisted by vice-president, Bob Martinez; secretary, Carol Miller; and treasurer, Shirley Cox. The sponsor was Mrs. Mary Pottorf, a Spanish teacher.

Book Guild Evaluates Literature

The main purpose of the Central Book Guild was to encourage interest in and appreciation for literature. Throughout the year the book guild had several projects, such as assisting with the library bond election, discussing in a series of meetings science-fiction books and magazines, and analyzing reference books. Lloyd White, president, was assisted by John Click, vice-president; John Conover, secretary; Robert Yowell, treasurer; and Richard Christy, reporter. The sponsor was Miss Helen Hagler.

Aids Increase Library Efficiency

Students with an interest in books, a recommendation from a teacher, and a desire to serve the school had the opportunity to become library assistants.

This year there were twenty-two junior librarians. The assistants performed many helpful tasks for the school librarians. Among these tasks were mending books, working at the circulation desk, and typing order cards. Receiving one-half unit toward graduation requirements and having the feeling of being of service were the assistant's rewards.

Chess Club Checkmates Rivals For All-City Title

Learning from the experts, Ralph Bartow concentrates on the strategy of Richard Christie and Jimmy Young, who pore over the 32 chessmen on the checkered board.

Winning the all-city chess trophy was the highlight of the year for the Central Chess Club under the sponsorship of Mr. Joe McArthur.

This year was the second one in a row that the Chess Club captured the all-city title. If next year's team is victorious, the trophy will become the permanent property of Central.

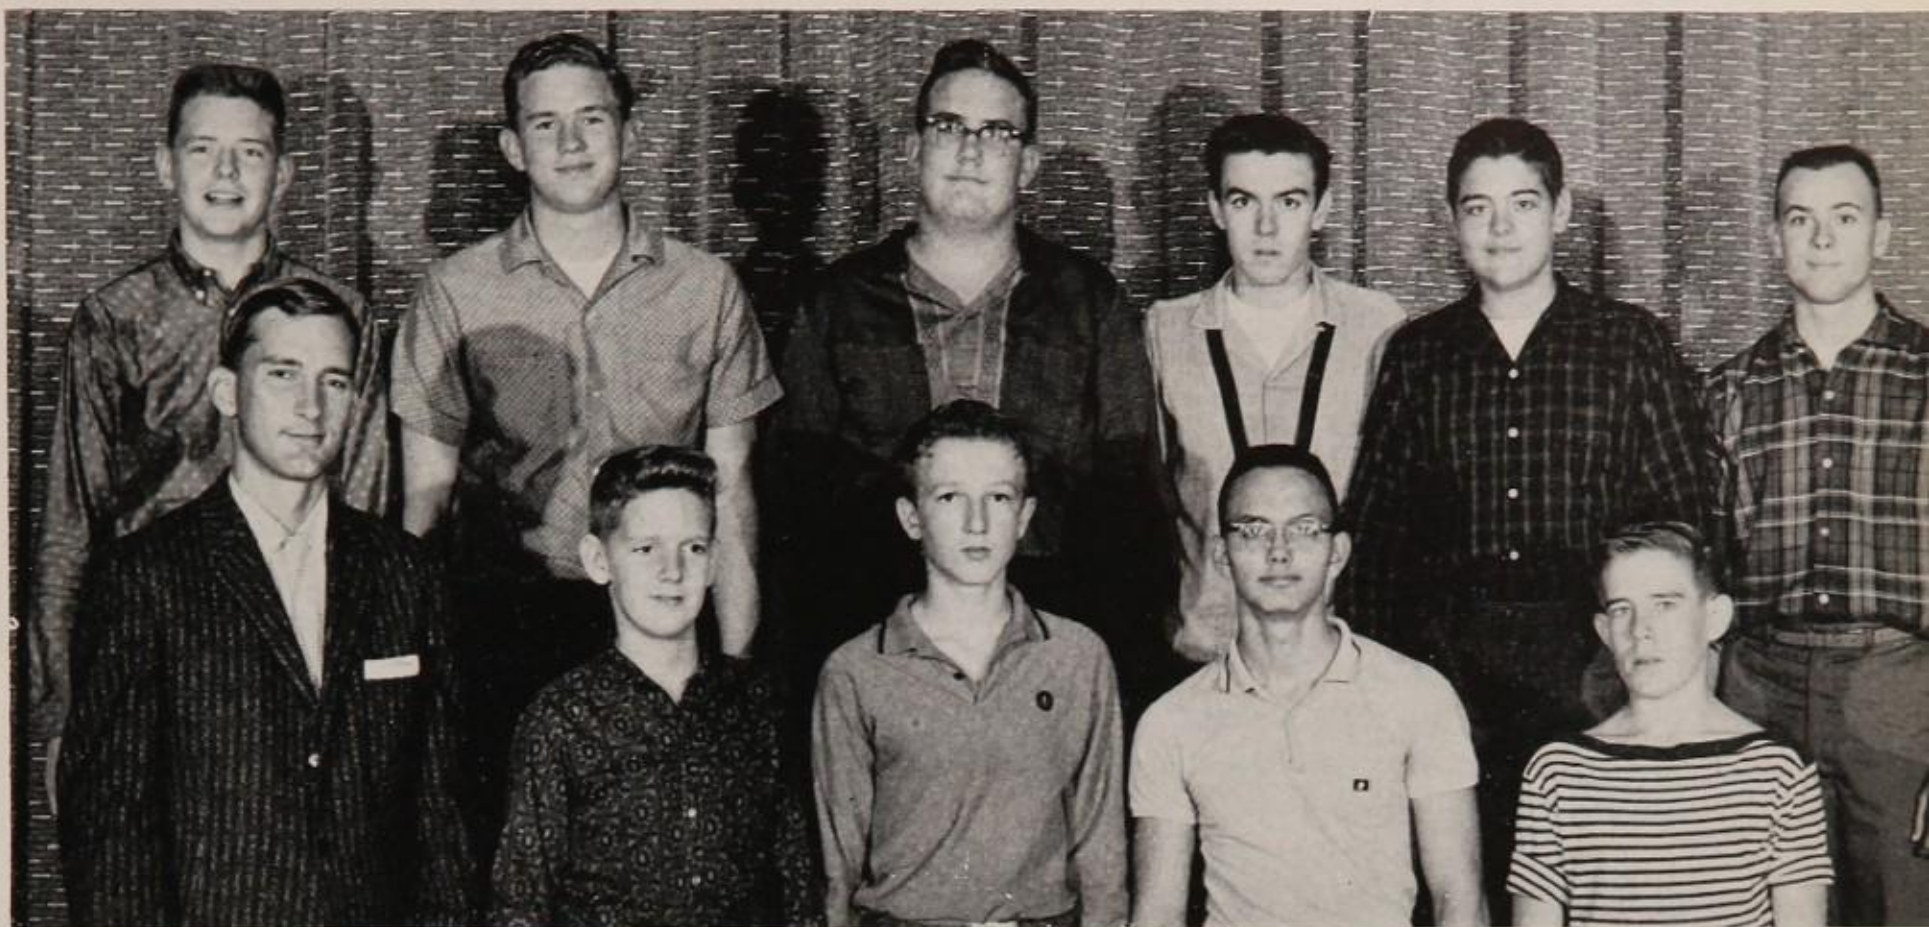

The team met on alternate Sundays throughout the year at Locust Park to play the teams from other schools. In these meetings the Central club lost only two games out of the thirty-five which the members played in competition.

The regular players on the team who qualified in preliminary matches were Robert Kirk, Victor McBee, Jimmy Young, and John Halka. Other Chess Club members who played in one or more of the matches were Bob Danford, Tom Avilla, Roger Kirkland, and Richard Christie.

Helping Mr. McArthur with the problems of running a chess team were the officers—Richard Christie, president; Jimmy Young, vice-president; John Conwell, treasurer; and Bob Danford, secretary.

Repeated Target Practice Improves Marksmanship

Using characteristic positions, officers aim at different targets—Allen Read, off-hand; James Flippo, sitting; and Mike Ellis, prone.

Rifle Club broke out the ammunition and riddled the targets every Tuesday afternoon in the girls' south gym from 3:30 to 5:15. There the members had the enjoyment of learning safe gun practices and principles of accurate marksmanship, designed to develop better use of firearms and more proficiency in shooting.

Any boy who was interested in handling rifles could become a member. The guns were furnished by the school.

Hampered for several weeks because the floor of their target practice room had to be refinished, the riflemen went on to prepare themselves for team competition. Allen Read won first place in sitting position in marksman class at the Oklahoma Military Academy Meet.

The 22 members of the Rifle Club, which was an affiliate of the National Rifle Association, named three officers—Allen Read, president; James Flippo, range officer; and Mike Ellis, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Tom Turnbaugh was their sponsor. Their one social activity was a dinner.

Treble Tones Strive For Professional Voice Quality

One of the divisions of the vocal music department was Treble Tones, which met the fourth period of each day. Under the direction of Mr. Rex Teague, sponsor, the singers elected their officers for the year—Jan Stephenson, president; Janice Wilder, vice-president; Jane Orenduff, secretary; and Marilyn Whited, treasurer.

As the girls worked during the year, they had these aims in mind: proficiency in music reading, tonal blending, ear training, understanding music, acquiring musical taste, correct breath control, musical interpretation, and learning to produce the finest sounds possible.

Treble Tones was composed of 42 girls, 40 sophomores and two juniors, who were able to obtain membership after trying out and being accepted according to voice quality. Performing in sophomore assembly and other programs provided good training for more advanced work in music. Their annual spring picnic climaxed their year of activities, and they left for vacation knowing they had improved their vocal talents.

Industrious vocal students—Jan Stephenson, Lita Baker, and Janis Wilder—willingly give their assistance to help Treble Tones move to their newly redecorated room on second floor.

Fifth Hour Girls' Chorus Puts Abilities To Work

Linda Hodgen, Sammye Albin, and Dee Ann Parrish look through the library of the fine sheet music which they have been singing and also some of the new which they will sing.

Fifth hour girls' chorus met daily for concentration on work and enjoyment in the vocal art. The singing group was open to any girl in Central who wished to enroll in the course. The girls' chorus was primarily a training choir for future membership in the more advanced Opera Club or A Cappella groups. The girls have gained much from their membership in the chorus. They have learned the basics of music, production of tone, proper care for the voice, pronunciation and diction, valuable ear training, and general musicianship.

Among their performances throughout the year they combined with the Treble Tones for one of the sophomore class assemblies, and they also gave performances for two of the junior high schools in the city. Everyone had a good time at the fall party, which was held at Mohawk Park.

Calling the class to order each day was Linda Hodgen, the president. Dee Ann Parrish filled the post of vice-president, and Sammye Albin served as secretary for the class. Mr. Rex Teague directed the chorus.

A Cappella Contributes To Central's Programs

Many times before and after school or during the lunch period vocal students use the newly redecorated music room to sing songs for their own pleasure. Among those who gather are Nancy Hawkins, Darrell Cook, and Pat Mize.

A Cappella Choir, the oldest music group at Central, founded in 1927, has contributed entertainment and culture to programs.

Officers elected to help Mr. Rex Teague, director, in planning the activities of the choir for the year were Robert Yowell, president, who managed to collect a dime from each gum-chewing person and to keep the class in order; Lester Gwin, vice-president; Nella Jean Scott, secretary, who kept the class records and roll; and Rosa Garrett, treasurer, who took care of all money transactions. Robert Pishel served the group as piano accompanist.

A Cappella, which met third period, was composed of 52 members selected by the director. Qualifications for membership included being a good citizen, producing a good tone, and singing on pitch. The achievement of harmony and tone was their main objective. Most of the music sung was considered to be good music, and a large part of it was from the sacred field.

Their appearances included the Thanksgiving Music Festival, the Christmas assembly, and the Easter one, for which they sang the entire program.

Other activities included participation in church services, senior vespers, and trips to various junior high schools.

Their fine performances were the result of many long hours of preparation and practice. The students gave much of their time before and after school.

Although it was a busy year with plenty of work to keep the students' time occupied, the members, in addition to their work, also enjoyed a fall party, a winter party held at the home of Nella Jean Scott, and a spring outing at Sequoyah Park.

As the A Cappella Choir prepares to sing in their general assembly program, Rosa Garrett and Nella Jean Scott, who help Bob Yowell and Lester Gwin into their maroon robes, make minor adjustments that only a girl's touch can give.

'Carousel' Performances Climax Days Of Practice

Bill Mieir as Enoch Snow and Barbara Johnson as Carrie Pipperidge look carefree and happy as they sing "When the Children Are Asleep," one of the popular songs from Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein's famous "Carousel."

Opera Club, one of the advanced vocal groups, presented Carousel, the well-known musical comedy by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, January 27-28, on the stage in the south auditorium. Mr. Rex Teague, director, and Mrs. Paula Whitson, speech arts teacher, trained the cast. Mrs. Frances Anderson was the accompanist.

Julie (Jeri Howell) wins the love of Billy Bigelow (David Grundish). Mrs. Mullins (Betty Duerr) fires Billy from the carousel, and Billy gets involved with the notorious Jigger Craigin (Tom Nicolle). They try to steal from the well-known David Bascombe (Ronnie McCurdy) and in the process Billy gets killed. Carrie Pipperidge (Barbara Johnson) consoles her, because at the time Julie has just found out she is going to have a baby. Billy goes to Heaven and meets his Heavenly Friend (Mike Roark) and the Star-keeper (Jim Devinney). They allow Billy to come back for one day to see his daughter Louise (Clarese Stowe). She is a very unhappy little girl, so Billy gives her some advice. Louise realizes that she has a whole future in front of her and with Him she can "Never Walk Alone."

Opera Club had several social activities such as the fall mixer, cast party, and spring outing. They also performed in general assemblies, including the Christmas assembly. They sang for civic groups, Parent-Teacher Association, and television and participated in the Tulsa Choral Festival and The Messiah. The principal singers in Carousel presented excerpts from the show at the second annual Opera Workshop of the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, Arkansas.

The 1960-61 officers of Opera Club included Ronnie McCurdy, president; Roger Caldwell, vice-president; Barbara Johnson, secretary; and Jeri Howell, treasurer.

After the fabulous and sparkling clambake, David Grundish as Billy Bigelow and Jeri Howell as Julie Jordan appear full and contented, but Tom Nicolle as Jigger Craigin acts as though the whole thing were a big bore to him.

Fifty-Two Piece Groups Performs For Programs

Pausing a moment in the band room during one of the practice sessions, orchestra members, Danna Martin and David Montgomery, check the strings of Danna's violin before leaving for Norman to play in the all-state orchestra.

Another full year came to a close for the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Don Linde with its spring concert. Many of the members were selected to accompany the all-city presentation of The Messiah. The string quartet played for banquets, including the annual membership banquet of the YMCA and for the brotherhood citation dinner of the National Council of Christians and Jews. Some of the members were selected for the all-city orchestra.

David Montgomery and Danna Martin were the only students from Central who participated in the all-state orchestra which rehearsed at Oklahoma University, February 23-26. On the last day the orchestra gave a concert in Oklahoma City. Individual honors came to Kay Hayes, who attended the International String Congress in Puerto Rico; John Conwell, who went to a summer music camp at Kansas University; and Danna Martin, who went to the summer music camp at Gunnison, Colorado.

The orchestra's schedule was filled to capacity. The group provided music for the Queen's Coronation, for the speech arts play, Stardust. They presented a medley of carols for the Christmas assembly. One project of the musicians was to accompany the Opera Club's production of the musical comedy, Carousel. They participated in the All-City Music Festival on April 26 and presented a general assembly program on April 28.

The members played a variety of music from George Frederick Handel to Theodore Newman. Mr. Newman was in Tulsa working with the music departments of the public high schools on a grant received through the Ford Foundation.

Officers of the orchestra were Bob Wandres, president; Steve Campbell, vice-president; Kay Hayes, secretary; and John Conwell, librarian.

The members of the Carousel orchestra attended the cast party. The other musicians joined them in the annual spring picnic for an afternoon of recreation.

Aware of the fact that the best results are gained from hard work and practice, the orchestra spent many diligent hours in training. As a result they were a fine 52 piece group which added to the school programs.

Concentrating diligently during their spare time, three orchestra officers—Bob Wandres, Kay Hayes, and John Conwell—harmonize, and thus present unusual and entertaining music for their orchestra director and other members.

Concert Band Provides Entertainment For All

Wielding the baton to direct the concert band, one of the classes offered in instrumental music, Dick Williamson, who performs a duty of the captain, gets the attention of the group during a daily practice session in room 237.

To provide entertainment for everyone was the aim of the 72 member concert band. This purpose was accomplished under the direction of Mr. Don Linde.

Rehearsals started early in September with the marching band preparing half-time shows for the football games and for their trip to Dallas, Texas. The band was asked to participate in the Cotton Bowl Parade during New Year's holiday. Members were especially proud of the honor since this time was the first time a Tulsa school had participated in a bowl parade.

The dance band, chosen after tryouts, provided part of the music for the all-band dance held in Dallas. They also played for dances, were featured in the Daze, and provided accompaniment from the pit for numbers in the show.

Highlighting the football season was the election of concert band members of Marilyn Johnson, band queen, and Shirley Holden and Carol Armstrong, attendants.

The new band room was added this year, and it proved quite an improvement.

Again this year the band members sold the World's Finest Chocolate to help raise money for uniforms, instruments, and their trip to Dallas.

After marching season the band settled down for a year of hard work. They played in the All-City Festival held April 26 at Hale High School. Band members, who played for the exchange assembly and pep assemblies, gave their annual concert for the students in general assembly. The yearly spring concert was held in May featuring a guest soloist. Again they provided the traditional graduation music for the seniors at Commencement exercises.

Officers of the band were Dick Williamson, captain; Charles Kruchek, lieutenant; Gerry Strickland, top sergeant; George Stevenson, senior sergeant; Larry Shackelford, junior sergeant; Jerry Reynolds, sophomore sergeant; David Westgate and Linda Nightingale, secretaries; Reva Gaines, head twirler; Don Boyd, drum major; and Marilyn Johnson, band queen.

The year was a full and exciting one, but the band members still had time for recreation at a picnic held at Mohawk Park.

Majorettes Add Grace To Football Games and Parades

Football games and parades would not have been the same without the strutting twirlers leading the band onto the field or down the parade path. In the early hours of the morning the girls could be seen persistently going through routines and formations to get them to perfection. The corps added grace to the half-time activities in their various and original costumes. They presented precision drills, twirled to such things as "From Jungle to Jive," and presented their fire baton routines to the delight of the spectators at the Central-Hale football game.

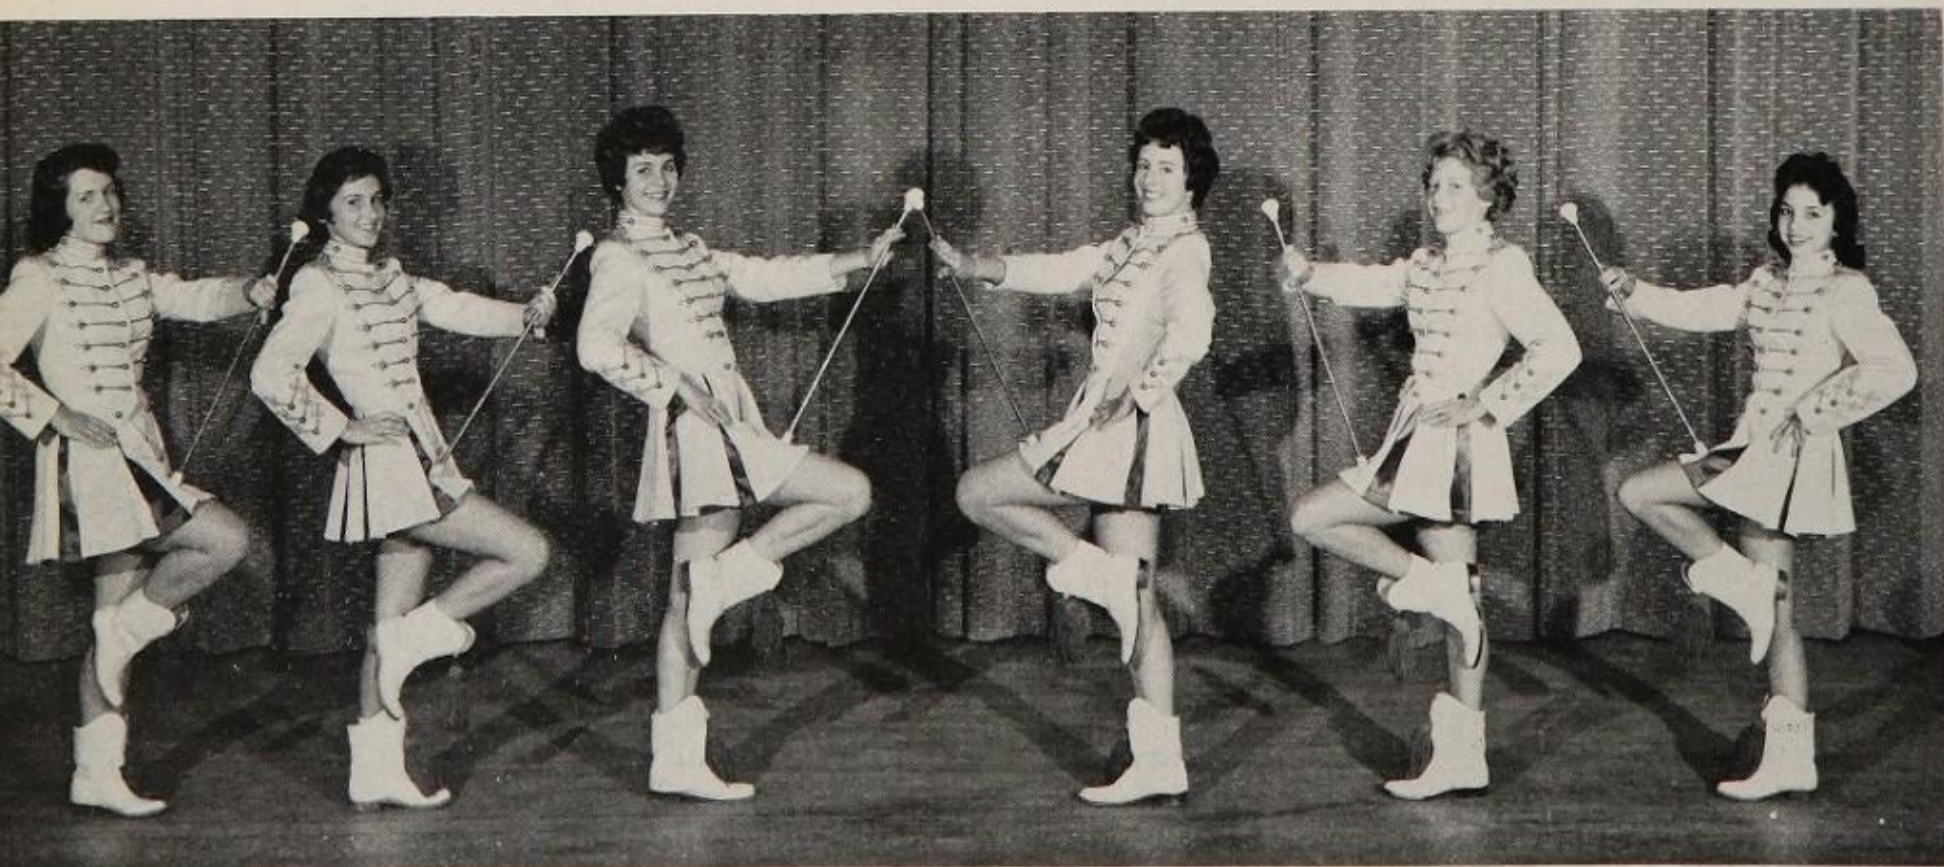

Assemblies, concerts, and parades all had a place on their schedule. When it came time for the Daze, they worked on their lighted baton number that they presented. The highlight of the year was the trip with the band to Dallas, Texas.

Reva Gaines, as head majorette, directed the five juniors through various intricate baton whirling patterns and formations.

Caught during their most difficult and mystifying feat, Marty Davidson and Reva Gaines, two of six majorettes doing the routine, twirl flaming batons at the half-time entertainment.

School Spirit Boosted High By Peppy Cheerleaders

Lillie Fox and Linda Staton, sophomore cheerleaders, diligently practice cheers, while Ann Wait and JoNelle English, "old pros," criticize.

Rewarded for their long and diligent months of practice, the cheerleaders were well known throughout the state as being champions for many years. Few people realized the tedious work and long hours they contributed to achieve perfection in their cheers and movements.

Every year hundreds of ninth grade junior high girls and boys flocked to the boys' gym to compete for the honor of cheerleader. In order to teach the prospective winners the yells, the cheerleaders stayed late many evenings.

Coached by Mrs. Wanda Newton, sponsor, seniors—Ann Wait, Bob Wandres, JoNelle English, and Bert McElroy; juniors—Linda Newton, Ray Hunt, Martha Barhydt, and Earl Hamm; and sophomores—Lillie Fox, Jim McNabb, Linda Staton, and Jim Fehrle—displayed fine enthusiasm at all the athletic events. As an added attraction, the girls wore new outfits of red vests, white blouses, and shorter red skirts to all the indoor winter sports.

Lettermen Inspire School Loyalty Through Sports

Lettermen's Club, designed to boost school spirit and encourage loyalty to Central, was one of the exclusive organizations, open only to boys who had earned athletic letters. The money making project of the members was showing movies of all Central football games and of some basketball games. They also showed a movie of a bowl game. A fee of fifteen cents was charged for each showing.

The money collected financed all club activities. The club paid the remaining bill on the side-line jackets which were given to the school by the lettermen three years ago.

Other activities included selecting the outstanding athlete of the year and presenting him with a trophy, having the annual picnic, and listening to sports stars. This year the fellows were fortunate enough to hear Olympic wrestler, Terry McCann, as well as some of the Tulsa University athletes.

Looking over trophies won last year by the Central Braves, lettermen—Bob Kelley, Glenn Sharp, Doug Blenkarn, Frank Fox, and Don Roberts—have pride in their achievements.

Athletic Managers Maintain Jobs of Responsibility

As Kenneth Haynes talks to the spotters on the field telephone, Jerry Housley waits to hear advice given by the scout in press box.

Behind every game and sport at Central were the athletic managers. No one heard much about this group, but they kept things running smoothly.

There were no special requirements to be athletic managers other than a liking for sports. They had to remain at all practices as long as the boys on the team to check in and out the equipment belonging to the boys' physical education department. When one sport was over, the managers had the job of cleaning up and storing the equipment for the following year. Then they were assigned to the next sport in season.

The managers not only dealt with the sports equipment, but they also were trained in first aid, knowing how to tape and care for minor ailments. Each manager who completed the season to the satisfaction of the coach received a letter just as a member of a team who completed the requirements of his sport. Ken Haynes served as the senior manager. Mr. Ned Blass was the sponsor of the group.

To boost the morale of the boys who are members of competitive sports teams, squad leaders make appropriate favors and present them to the fellows each time before they go into action. Approving ideas which have been suggested and deciding when the tokens should be used, the cabinet — Suzanne Hendrix, Diane Wolfe, Mary Schooler, and Carol Ellison—surround their sponsor, Mrs. Valdene Sands for some advice.

Red Feathers Stimulate Pep for Athletic Events

All smiles and cheers were the peppy Red Feathers, who sparked enthusiasm for the athletic events of the school.

The fun started with the football season when the squad leaders and officers appeared in their new red and white jackets. Before each game they formed a C for Central on the field and led the football players through the formation.

To insure the rooters of transportation to the games, the girls chartered buses to Muskogee, Ponca City, and Bartlesville.

At the meeting before Christmas Coach Chuck Bowman, who came as Santa Claus, brought candy canes and holiday wishes for all the Red Feathers.

During the seasons each varsity team was honored in meetings. The coaches presented pep talks to give the girls a better idea about the sports.

Teachers and Students Direct Pep Club Functions

As Mary Schooler, president, and Diane Wolfe, treasurer, sell twenty-five cent memberships to two juniors, Luann Williams and Carol Cannon, they come across a sophomore letterman, Jim Wiltshire, who pleads to become a member.

Officers and sponsors included Mary Schooler, president; Carol Ellison, vice-president; Suzanne Hendrix, secretary; Diane Wolfe, treasurer; Mrs. Valdene Sands, head sponsor; Mrs. Wanda Newton, cheerleader sponsor; Miss Shirley Hughes, financial adviser; and Miss Jane Collier and Miss Margaret Honegger, in charge of squad leaders.

Cheering him on to fight and win for CHS, Areta Gates and Carol Ellison commend Charlie White and deliver to him a Red Feather booster favor before the wrestling regionals.

Phillip Summers, Elvin Morgan, Lester Gwin, Don Boyd, and Joel Bullard gaze at what the students fondly refer to as the "athletic rogues' gallery." Lining the walls near the boys' physical education office are many rows of lettermen's group pictures, dating back to the year 1907 when Tulsa High (now Central) fielded its first football team.

Enthusiastic Scalpers Co-ordinate Pep Activities

To encourage school spirit and loyalty to the athletic teams was the purpose of Scalpers, boys' pep club. The members joined with the Red Feathers to give the coronation mixer, honoring Suzanne Hendrix, Miss Central High XL, and her court.

Elected to the presidency was Glenn Sharp. Other members of the cabinet were Jim Shofner, vice-president; Fred Strahm, secretary-treasurer; and Jerry Knotts and Richard Christie, student assistants. The co-sponsors of the group were Mr. Ernest McHugh and Mr. Arnold Stock.

The Scalpers held meetings Friday mornings during home room period either in the boys' gym or in the south auditorium. When the occasion arose, they met with Red Feathers, the girls' pep organization, for a joint session full of fun and frolics.

Those who were interested formed an ushering squad for the Daze, Vespers for the graduating seniors, and Commencement exercises at Skelly Stadium.

The Scalpers did not confine their support to any one sport but shared their enthusiasm with fall, winter, and spring sports.

Arnold Stock, sponsor, Richard Christie, Fred Strahm, Glenn Sharp, Jim Shofner, Jerry Knotts, and Mr. Ernest McHugh, sponsor—have a tough but highly enjoyable job of planning meetings to raise the school's pep and enthusiasm for the many different sports participated in throughout the year's schedule.

Few people realize the time and effort that is put into the important duty of ushering for the Daze, Commencement, and Vespers by Scalpers. The efficient Daze ushering squad—Richard Christie, Joel Owens, Joe Cervantez, Tommy Avilla, Mike Ault, John Spears, and Jerry Knotts—make sure their white jackets are in perfect condition for the six big Daze performances. Head captains of the squad—Richard Christie and Jerry Knotts—select the most deserving and hard-working members for this privilege of serving their school.

Girls' Physical Education Teaches Various Sports

While Linda Hodgen, Judy Davis, and Darlene Ferlin hold the canoe, Lana Lunceford learns the correct way to get into it from the water.

Dorothy Sells, Donna Bruner, and Nancy Still, who aim and fire their arrows at the target in the south gym, are demonstrating correct form necessary for a skilled archer.

Girls in a junior modern dance class, which works for better coordination and development of creative ability, assume a typical beginning position—Donna Bruner, Kay Mauck, Jeanette Robinson, and Jean Olden.

Diana Griffin executes on the rings an eagle nest, one of the best exercises recommended for correcting round shoulders.

Preparing for a penalty bully in the middle of a game of field hockey Pat Wilkins, center, and Jean Peebles, goalie, will try to gain for her team possession of the ball, thus making possible a chance for a goal.

Learning the fine points of volleyball playing, Linda Hodgen, sophomore, practices serving the round ball in an eager attempt to score a point against her opponents.

Bonnie Price and Wilma Blake, guards, try unsuccessfully to keep Karen Leewright, a member of the opposing team, from making a basket which puts her team ahead.

Sarah Tatum, one of many girls who learn different sports in physical education classes, tries to perfect a fore-hand in order to return a ball correctly to her opponent.

On a cold day Mrs. Jessie V. Ward, matron and friend to all the girls in the physical education department, distributes sweat shirts to Lana Loveness, Jean Cochran, and Jewel Beach en route to the baseball field.

Individual Gym Results In Improvement Of Posture

Working steadily on posture exercises which will help to straighten and to strengthen weak muscles, Linda Harris, sophomore, tries to touch her toes while on a plinth during her individual physical education class.

As she pitches the ball, Arlene Kearns, one of the sophomore girls going out for spring softball, starts the game smiling.

Interested Girls Display Recreational Abilities

In the boys' gym Nikki Anderson, Madeline Snow, Barbara Coachman, and Janie Colburn watch Pat Davenport demonstrate a good lay-out position on the trampoline.

The state-affiliated Girls' Recreation Association had as its purpose the promotion of good health and sportsmanship through the participation in recreational activities.

Under the direction of Mrs. Sharon Cairns, Miss Margaret Honegger, and Miss Madeline McDonald, the girls met every Monday and Wednesday after school to take part in volleyball, basketball, softball, hockey, hiking, doing stunts on the trampoline, and free swimming periods. They even challenged a team of women teachers to a volleyball game, which proved to be an upset for the faculty members because G.R.A. won.

Officers of G.R.A. included Pat Davenport, president; Barbara Coachman, vice-president; Janie Colburn, secretary; Linda Pingleton, treasurer; JoAnn Westgate, points chairman; Madelyn Snow, historian; and Nikki Henderson, state points chairman. Each girl who accumulated the necessary number of points received state awards and medals from the Oklahoma G.R.A. association.

Diligently practicing every Wednesday after school in the girls' north gym, members of the all-star volley ball team—JoAnn Westgate, Barbara Coachman, Wanda Stayathome, Janie Colburn, Pat Davenport, Madelyn Snow, and Roberta Hall—have a strenuous workout to improve the coordination which makes them champs.

Synchronettes Practice Syncopated Precision Timing

Synchronette leaders get ready for a swim—seated, Suzanne Hendrix, Ann Ringland, Kathy Guy, Sally Wolf, and Carol Ellison; in water, Ann Ehlers and Janet Earlougher.

After try-out clinic and selection of new members, Synchronettes held their annual fall picnic to start the year's activities. In December the members, under the direction of Miss Margaret Honegger, sponsor, attended a clinic - workshop held on the Oklahoma University campus. Experience and fun were gained from the trip. They received high honors from their precision display.

April 13, 14, 15 were the nights Synchronettes presented their water show, Tides of Time, at McLain High School. The glittering scenery plus the precision swimming helped to make the program a great success.

The 1960-61 officers included Suzanne Hendrix, president; Kathy Guy, vice-president; Ann Ringland, secretary-treasurer; Sally Wolf, historian; Ann Ehlers, Janet Earlougher, and Carol Ellison, coaches. Meetings were held every Thursday after school in the girls' pool, where members built up their stamina and also practiced and learned new stunts and strokes.

Six Synchronettes portray snakes in a weird number set to the music of "Taboo"—seated, Beverly Bost, Carol Gold, and Janet Earlougher; standing, Ann Ringland, Nancy Tracy, Judy Megee.

With hats over swimming caps ready for the spectacular performance of "Tammy," the girls in the number pause at the diving board—Kathy Guy, Sally Wolf, Diane Erbert, Joyce Webb, Muffy Davis, and Eleanor Borland.

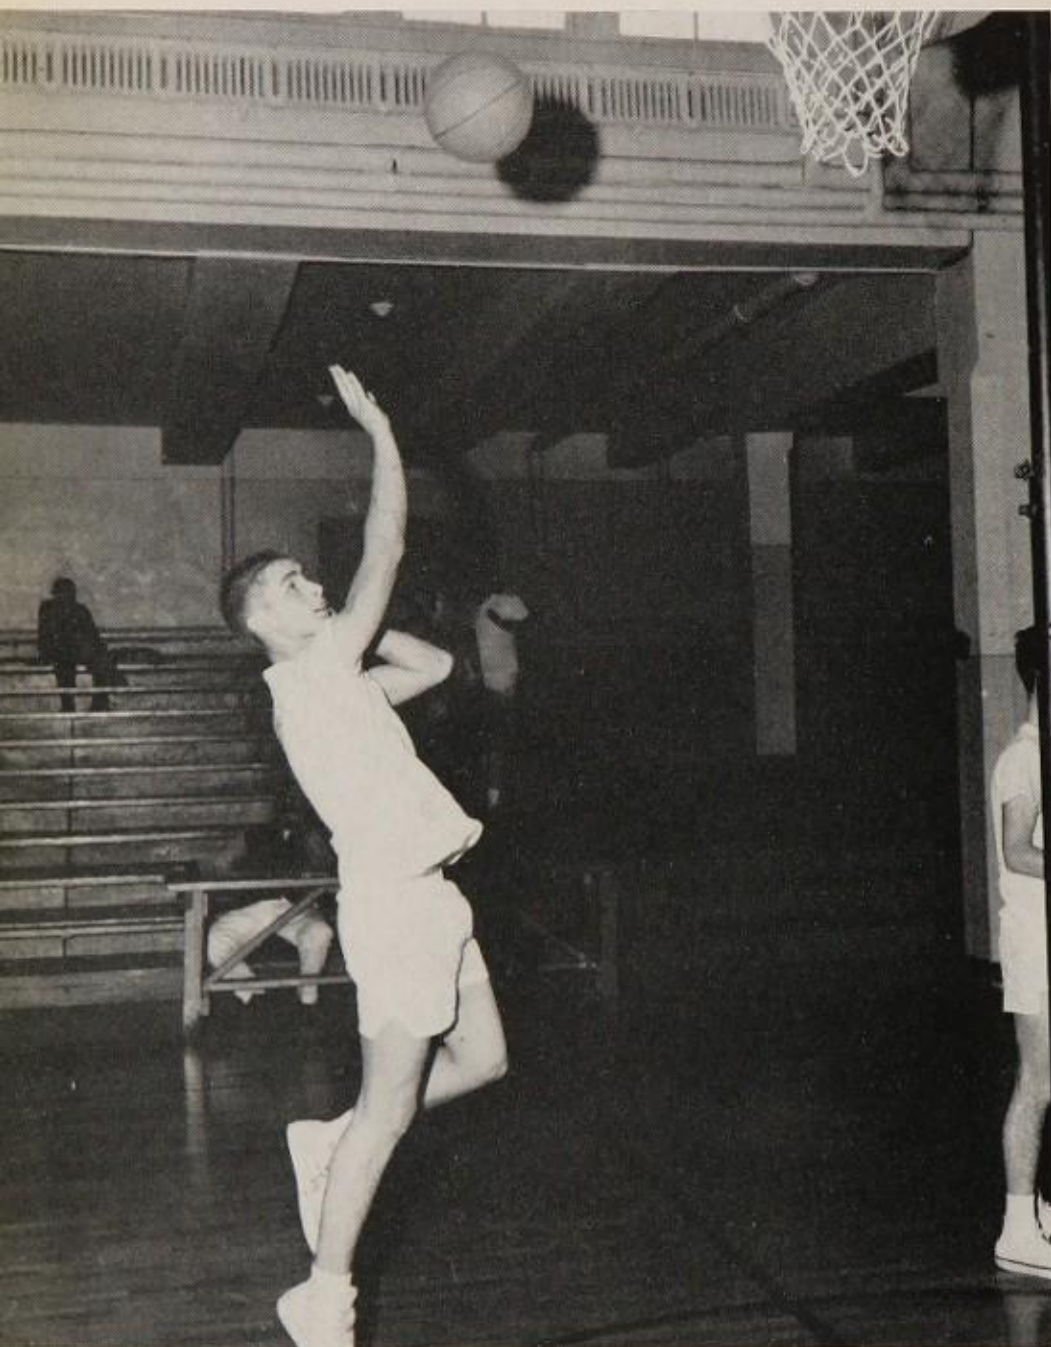

Displaying the expert precision and gracefulness of water ballet, Suzanne Hendrix, Ann Ehlers swim to record, "Greensleeves."

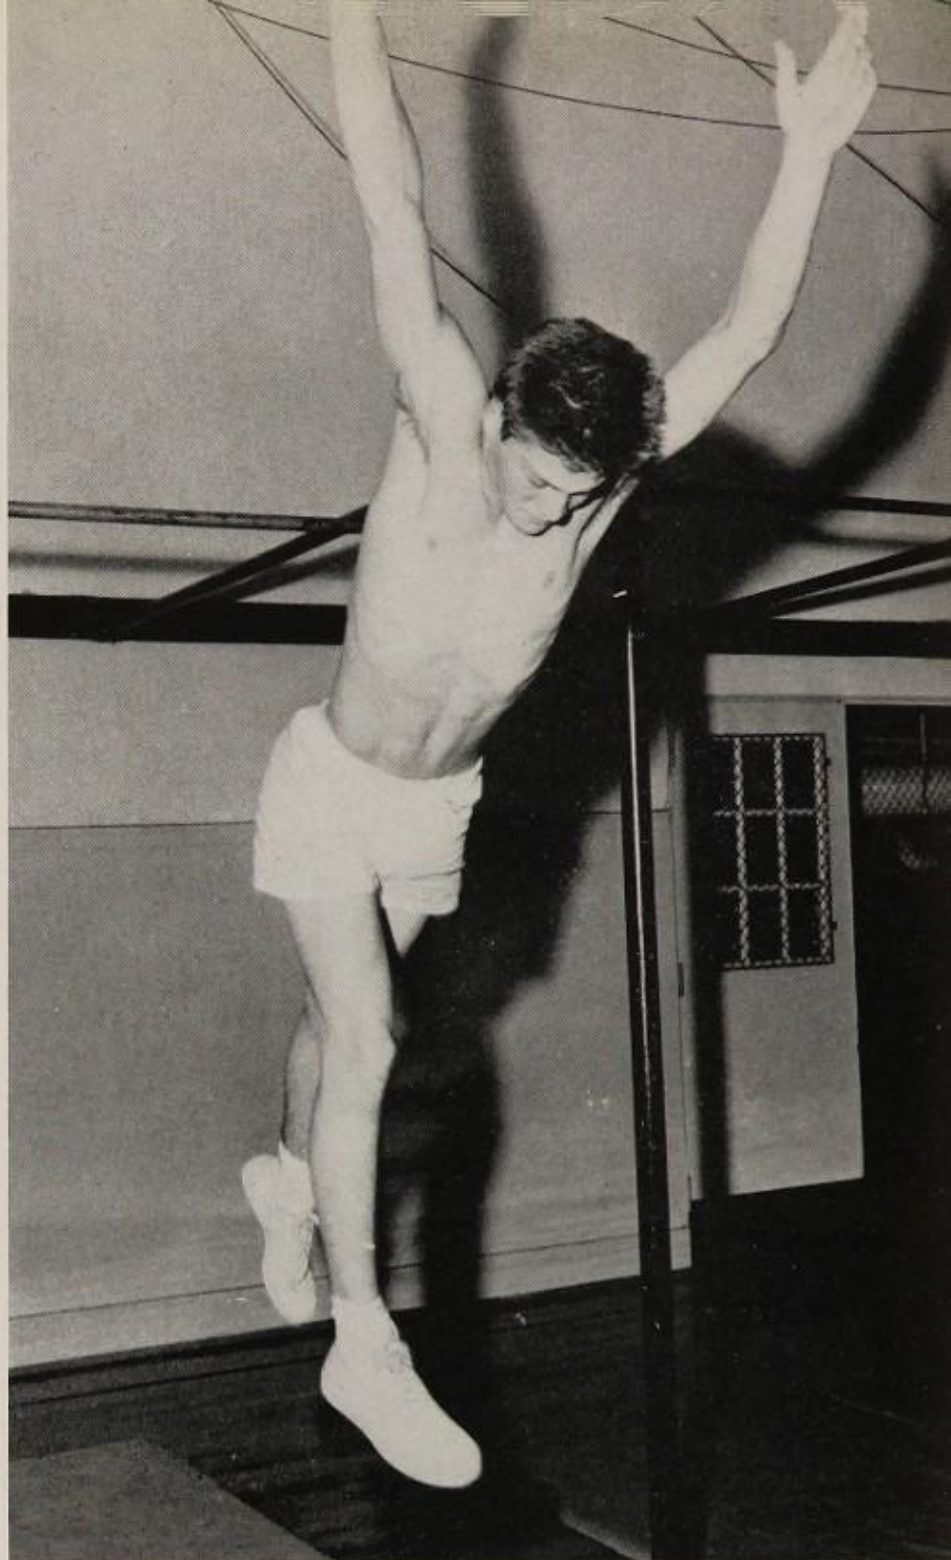

Martha Barhydt, who just has to have "Sound Waves" disc jockey play her favorite record, gets her request but also ends in the water . . . clothes and all!

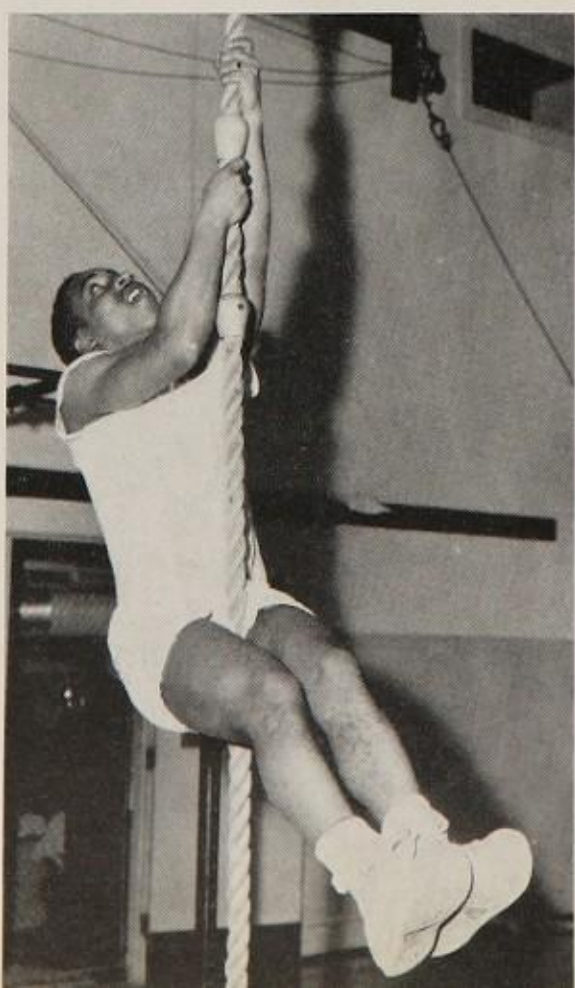

If persistent practice helps to make perfect, David Roper, lanky sophomore, will have a better shooting eye when he completes his required session of boys' physical fitness.

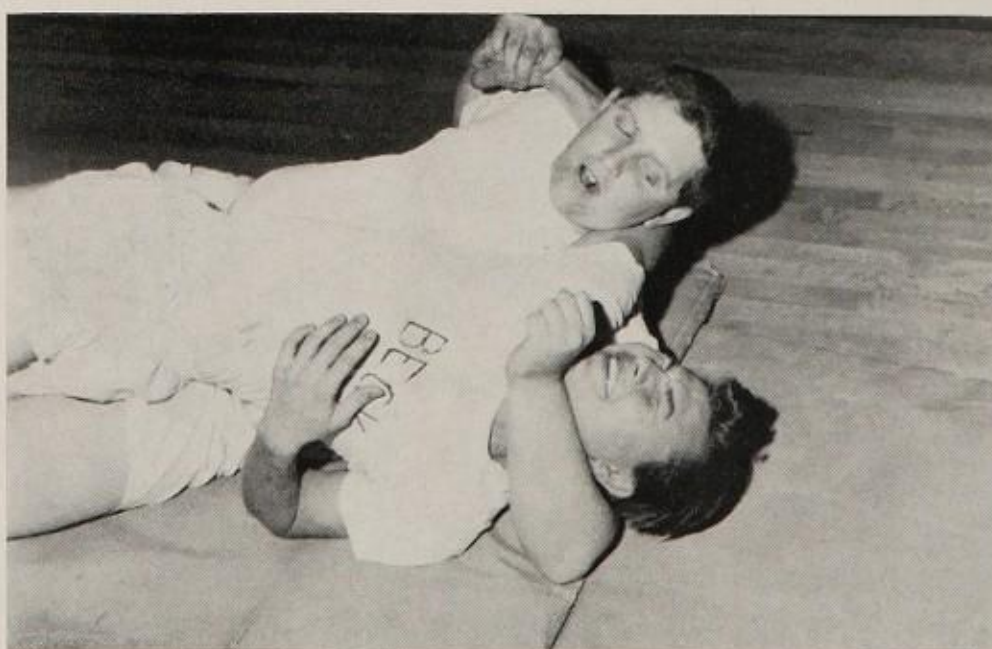

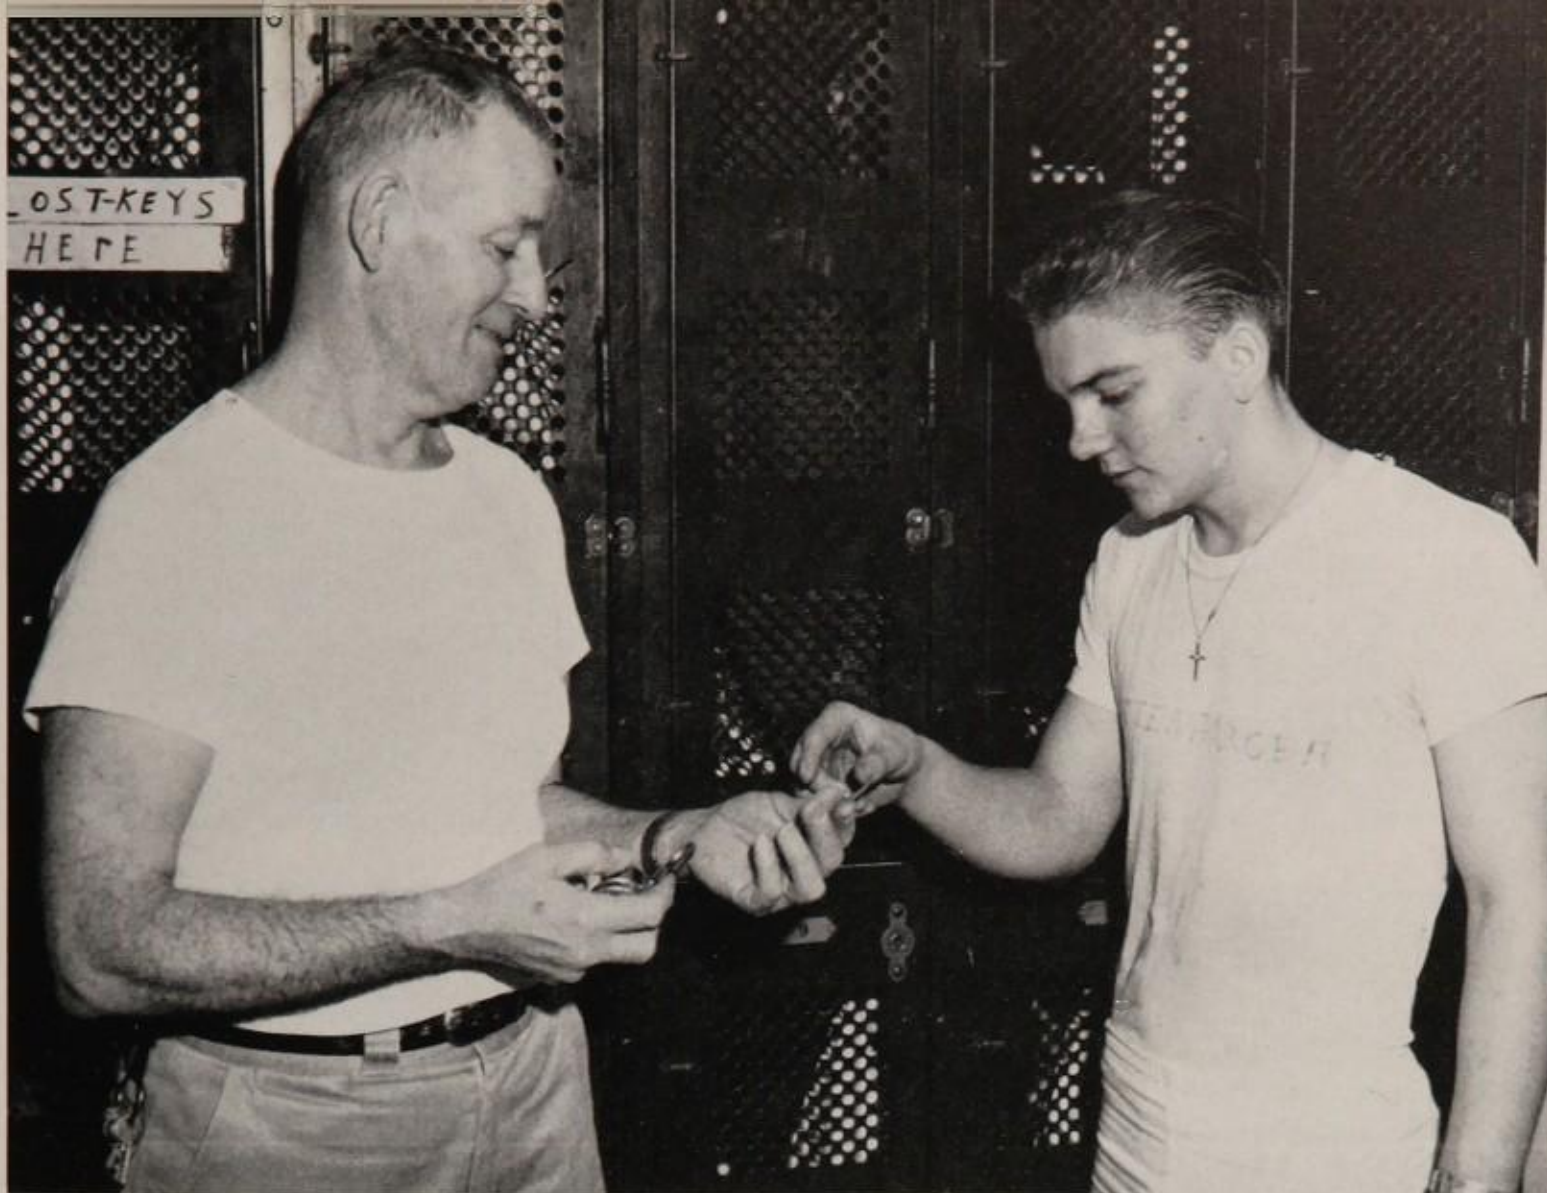

Displaying an amazing ability of muscle co-ordination in the first hour physical education class, Joe Turk, sophomore, performs artfully the flip off the high bar.

During fifth hour boys' physical education class, Seigle Thurman, senior, displays his rope climbing ability and skill.

Always a popular sport with boys, wrestling occupies Floyd Beck, who grimaces with pain, and Bob Tutty, who applies a firm headlock. Wrestling is only one of the sports which boys' physical education offers.

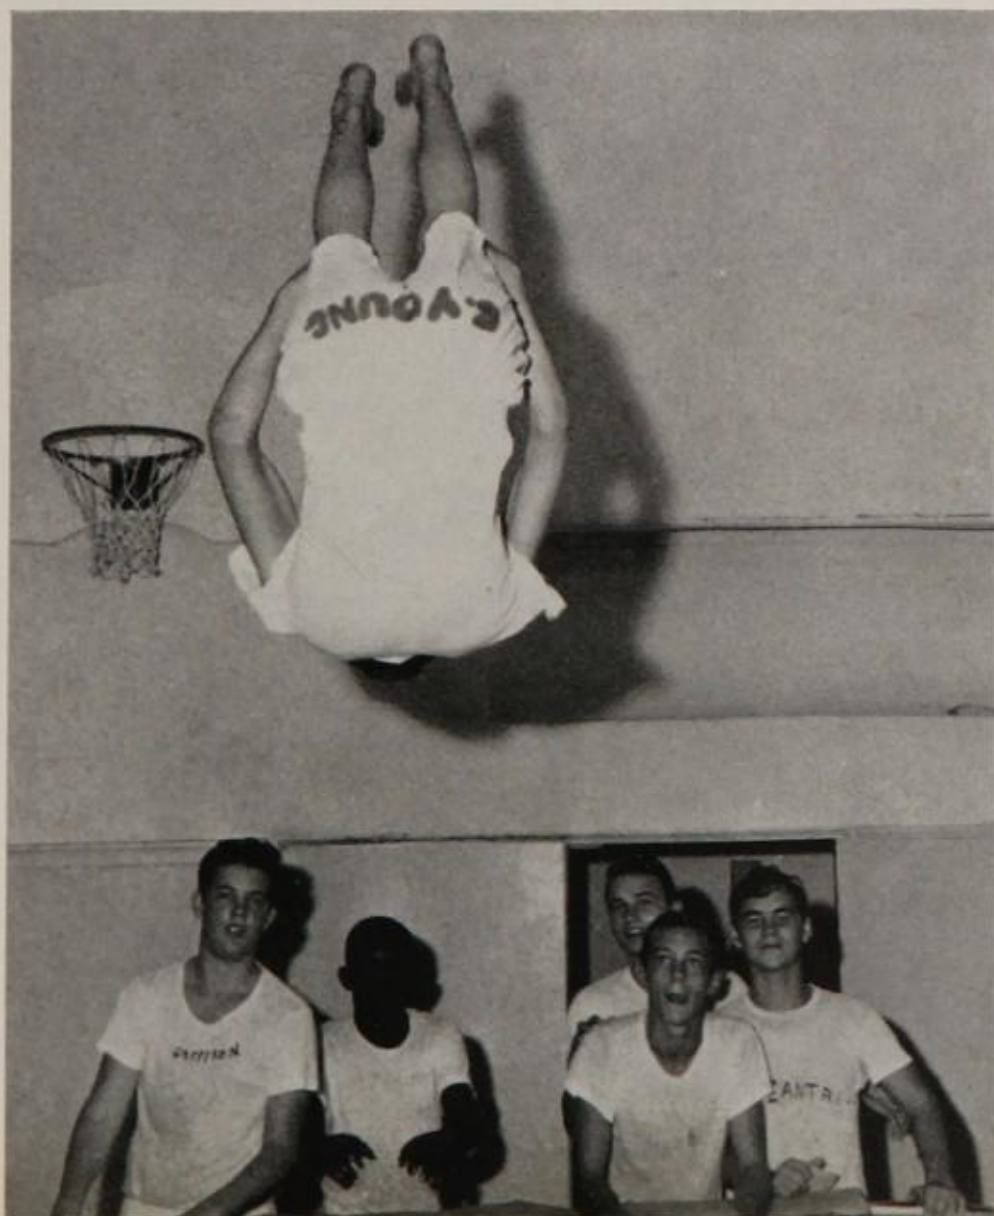

Picking up possessions that belong to forgetful lads in the gymnasium, Mr. Pat McNeilly, locker room attendant and friend to all boys, takes time from his custodial duties to help Lee Wattenbarger find a lost key.

Boys' Physical Education Creates Healthy Youths

Central Gridiron Team Comes Out Even On Season

After many grueling morning and afternoon practice sessions, the Central Braves entered the 1960-61 football season with only six returning lettermen—Bob Kelley, Harry Lindsay, Mike Long, Don Roberts, Jim Seabolt, and Larry Sullivan.

In the annual round-robin football game the Braves were pitted against the Webster Warriors. Time ran out with the scoreboard still reading 0-0; however, the Warriors were awarded the victory on the number of first downs which they had gained. Undaunted by this loss, the Braves came back strong in the Booker T. Washington game to defeat the Hornets 20-18.

The Braves were defeated in four very close games and were really on the warpath when they met with the Nathan Hale Rang-

Leaving the team in the huddle, John Hammond, quarterback, comes out to look the situation over and to plan the best strategy to employ against those eager Cougars from Ada.

ers. The Rangers played valiantly but were unable to withstand the onslaught of the Central Braves. The contest ended 28-0.

Victory continued to follow the team as they traveled to Ponca City for the wettest game of the season. The many loyal Central fans who followed the Braves out of town were rewarded with a magnificent display of football talent as the home team was defeated 13-0 by the Braves.

One victory led to another as the Braves plowed up the Muskogee Rougher's line and players in a 13-12 game at Skelly Stadium. Both teams played hard and fast. It was one of the best games of the season.

The Braves defeated the McLain Scots in an easy (after Muskogee) game. McLain like Nathan Hale is a new school and has not yet developed a powerful team to rival teams of Tulsa's older schools.

The last game of the season was played against the Ada Cougars on the Ada field. It was a cold night and the team played well, but it was not enough to defeat the Cougars. Struggling hard to gain the lead, the Braves succeeded once, yet held a near tied game until the fourth quarter when with fresh recruits Ada pushed on to a 36-20 victory.

The year, although not so fruitful as it might have been, was not a total loss. The B-team was victorious in all its contests with two exceptions.

In the Bartlesville game, one of the hardest fought of the season, Jim Seabolt (33), halfback, plows through two of the Wildcats for a twelve yard gain at Skelly Stadium.

In an attempt to halt the speedy Ada runner, Larry Sullivan reaches out to make the stop along with an assist from teammate Bill Mieir, in the last game of the long 1960-61 season.

Having faked his man out of position, Danny Smith, lonesome end, leaps high into the air to receive the pigskin and to complete a forward pass play in the crucial all-city conference game with Edison Eagles. Unhappily for Central spectators the Braves lost this exciting, action-packed contest by six points in the final quarter of the game.

B-squad Braves Have Near Perfect Seasonal Record

In Central's first regular season football game after the round robin, Bob Kelley, senior halfback, looks for an opening in the middle of the Booker T. Washington line.

During the closing crucial minutes of the first quarter in a hard fought game against the Edison Eagles, Harry Lindsay (12), intercepts a pass from his opponent's hands.

The B-squad Braves ran headlong into the 1960-61 season to be applauded by Central fans as they masterfully overcame each opponent. The opening game against Webster ended in a 16-0 score for Central.

The Edison and Hale games were victories also with respective scores of 12-6 and 20-14. The next game was lost to Muskogee, 20-6. However the sophomore team came back to win the next four games over the opponents—Bartlesville, McLain, Washington, and Rogers.

Jogging around the track at Central Park, cross-country lettermen—John Cortes, Ernest Skocdopole, Terry Powell, and Jim Glasgow—strive for a better running condition.

Harriers Pit Themselves Against Stiff Competitors

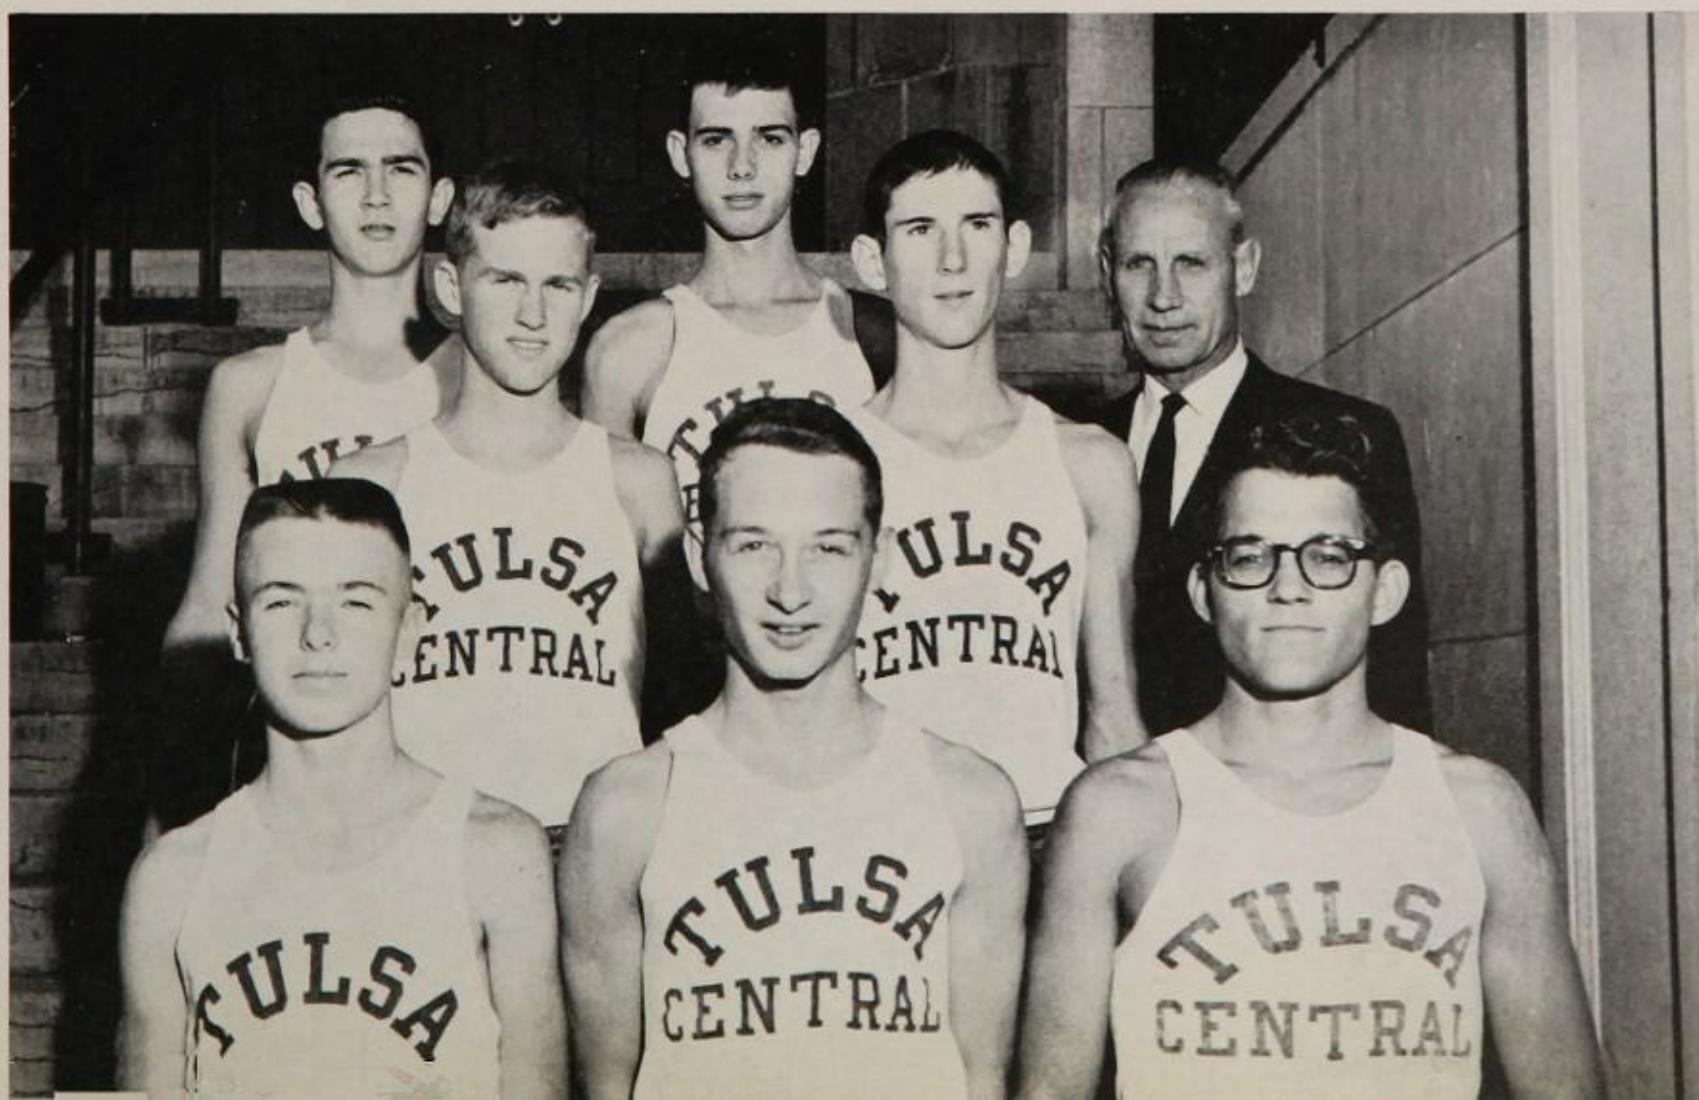

Charging through all their meets, the cross-country team ran fast and furiously during the months of October and November to capture the third place state trophy.

The most difficult meet was the Wichita Telegraphic. The scores from schools in several cities, which were too far away to go to Kansas for the meet, telegraphed to Wichita the scores that their teams made on the home tracks. The scores were tallied and mailed back to the cities. Central placed fourth against many of the nation's best teams.

Other meets participated in were the invitational meets of Oklahoma Baptist University and Oklahoma State University, the state meet at O.S.U., the McLain duel, and several city meets. All resulted in first or second place victories for the team.

Short Basketball Squad Upsets Taller Opponents

With a short and inexperienced squad at the start of the cage season, the Central Braves, coached by Mr. Eddie Sutton, were not given much hope of having a good year by most observers. Earning a third place finish in city league competition, the team proved to be one of the big surprises of the basketball season.

Playing three games in the Class AA division of the Nathan Hale Tournament, the Braves beat a strong Duncan team while losing to Cushing and Muskogee. The Muskogee contest went into two overtime periods before the Roughers could break the tie and end the game at 45-43.

Two points proved to be Central's margin of victory in the next two outings as the team downed Kelley 37-35 and Hale 29-27. Harry Bailey was the hero in the Hale game when he hit a basket in the final seconds of the contest to break a 27-27 tie.

After losing to Bartlesville, the Braves came back strong to topple the taller Will Rogers' team for a 39-23 loss.

Victory seemed to look the other way as Central dropped three close games to Edison, McAlester, and Oklahoma City Central.

In the second meeting with Muskogee, the score was tied 38-38 going into the overtime period when Richard Hoyle connected from the floor, was fouled, and added the free throw to put Central safely ahead as the final score read 41-40.

Things began to look dark for the Braves as Booker T. Washington, Webster, Edison, and Hale picked up victories during Central's longest losing streak of the season.

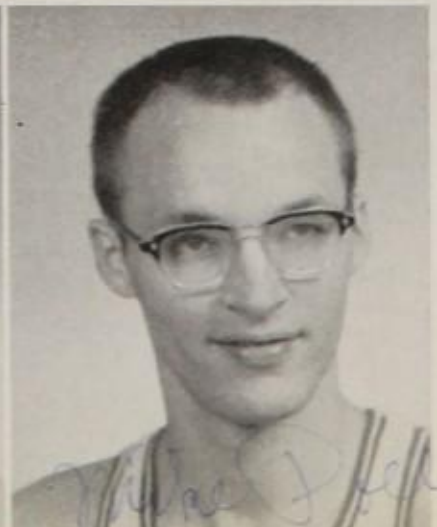

To add to the problems of Coach Sutton, Mike Pollard, regular forward, underwent an appendectomy after the Edison game and was not expected to return to action until later in the season.

Cagers End With 6-6 City Mark

Upset was the key word in the last month of regular season play when Central won five of the six games they played in February.

The high-flying McLain Scots were expected to have no trouble with Central when they met for the first time. With a 20 point effort from Dennis Smith, the Braves raced to a surprising 54-43 victory over the Scots. McLain's top scorer was held to only 10 points by the fine defensive work of John Hammond.

Will Rogers was the only team to defeat Central in February. After this Roper loss, the Braves took it out on Cascia Hall with a 47-33 verdict.

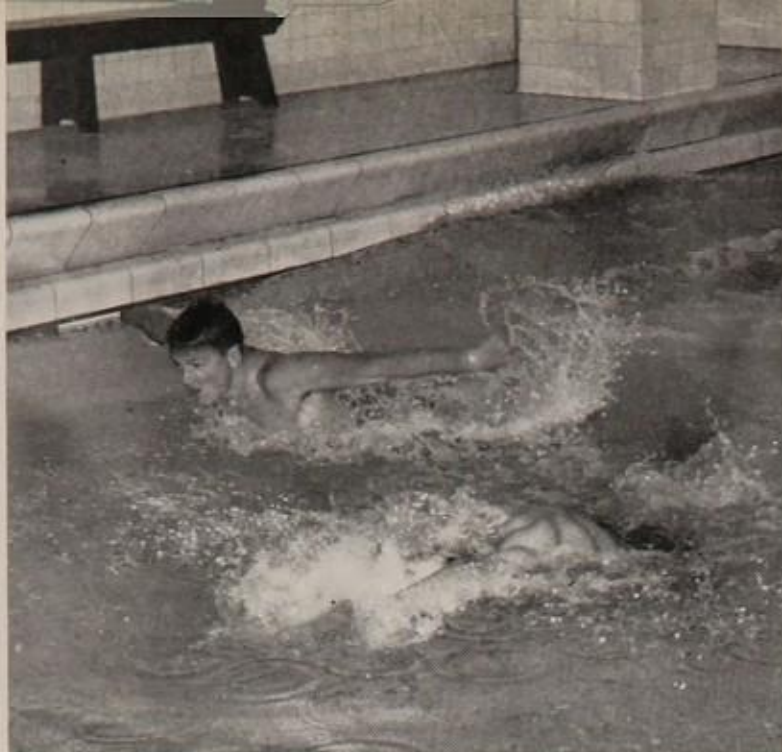

Hitting for four points in the overtime period, Harry Bailey helped to push Central past the league leading Booker T. Washington Hornets 43-41.

McLain faced the hot Central team next and were on the losing end of a 44-37 score.

The Braves played one of the best games of the season against the Webster Warriors as Central came from behind to capture a 56-55 win. This victory gave the cagers an 11-11 season for all games and a 6-6 record in city league competition.

Central's six-foot tall John Hammond (24) is fouled by the taller six-foot seven-inch Bob Swaffar (29) from Will Rogers High.

Swimmers Establish New Freestyle Relay Record

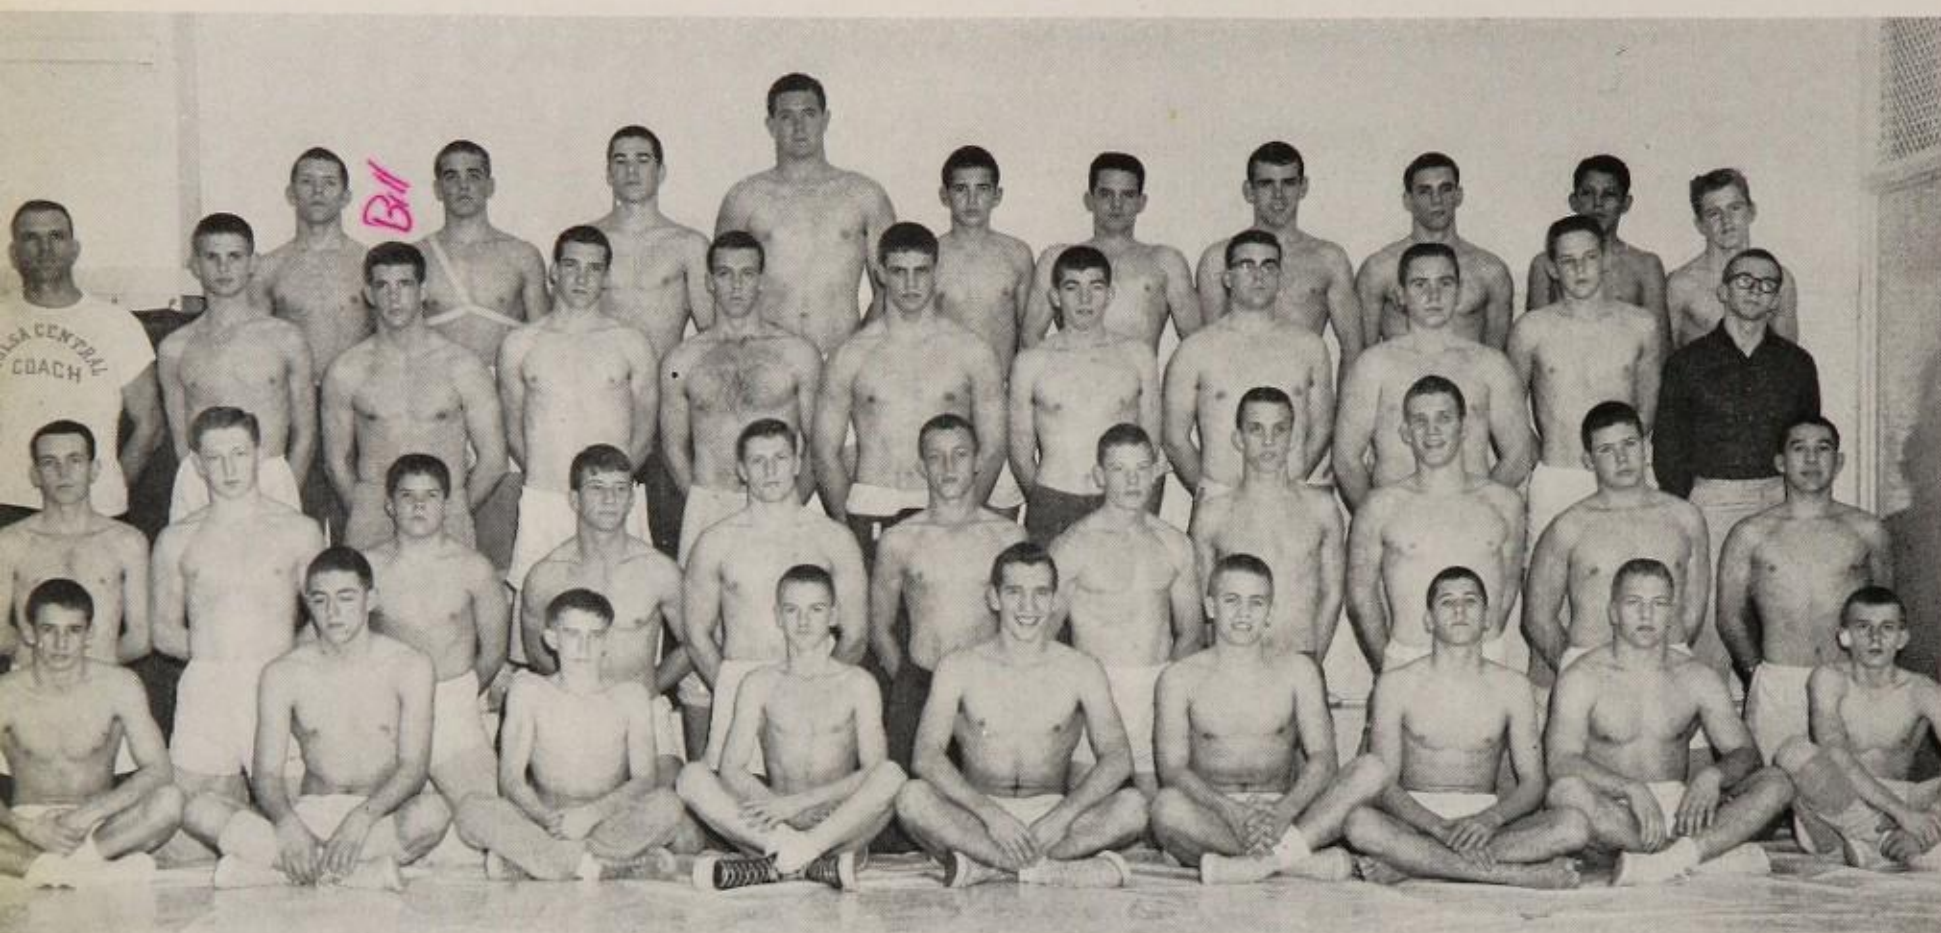

After the football season was over, Coach "Rosy" Nolan, in his second year as Central's swimming instructor, proceeded to tackle the rebuilding problems facing the young swim team. Helping Coach Nolan were returning lettermen—Jim Favell, Phillip Brown, Tom Deal, and Ray Hunt.

Late in February the team took part in the annual all-city swimming competition which was hosted by the defending state champions, Edison. In this all-Tulsa affair, Jim Favell, Ken Owen, Phillip Brown, and Tom Deal came in with a new record in the 160-yard freestyle relay as the team broke the meet's oldest mark in a time of 1:17.5. Central captured the third place trophy in this meet behind the Edison Eagles and the Will Rogers Ropers.

Central's matmen under the leadership of Coach Ned Blass entered the 1960-61 season against one of the top teams in the state, Edison. The match was lost, but the team returned to take second place in the Bristow Tournament.

Inspired by this victory, the Braves pushed on to defeat McLain 22-21 and Putnam City 22-11. The next match was on the Ponca City home mats. The contest was nip-'n-tuck all the way, but the final score showed the opponents ahead 19-13. The following match was also lost 24-12 to Stillwater. Ready to wield tomahawks, the Braves pinned Rogers 21-9. January 20-21 the team went to Midwest City. Two grapplers won all their matches to give Central a second place victory. Roy Brewer was voted the outstanding wrestler of the tournament.

One week later the Braves defeated Booker T. Washington 30-6. The following match was lost to Edison 11-24. The team won a return contest with Rogers but lost to Webster.

Matmen Outlast Tulsa Opponents In All-State Meet

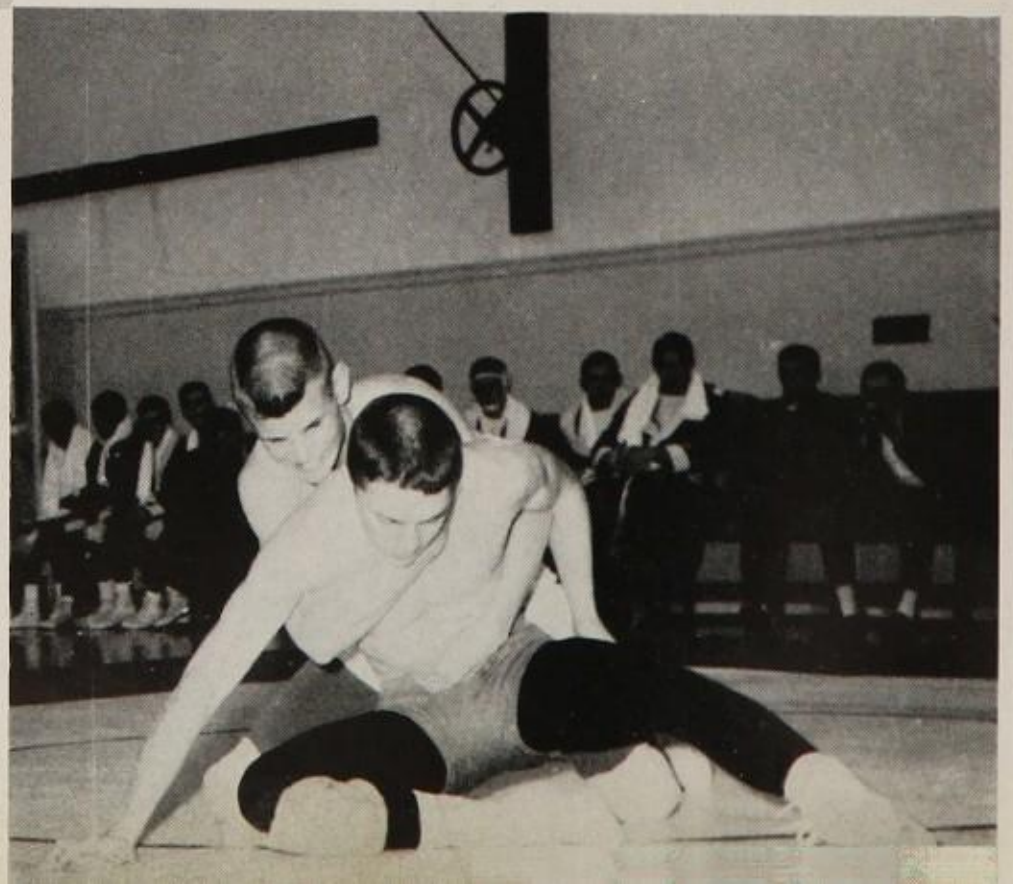

Working toward his eighth consecutive win, Roy Brewer gains two points for a take-down during the action of the 147-pound match with Midwest City Bombers.

Two week-ends in February caused the boys to train harder and wrestle with more determination. They were the weekends of the regional and of the state tournaments, which the team had been working toward all year. On the Edison mats they won over all opponents from Tulsa schools and were topped only by Ponca City, the defending state champion.

The state tournament found the Braves ready. They won their matches to take fourth place. Central matmen were defeated only by Edmond, Ponca City, and Oklahoma City John Marshall. Two team members—Roy Brewer and Charles White—were state champions. At the close of the season, Brave wrestlers chose Brewer and White co-captains of the team.

Charles White, Central's state champion wrestler at 130 pounds, has an advantage over his Roper opponent from Will Rogers as he works for a pin during their match.

With the approach of spring the Tracy Park tennis courts became a beehive of activity as the Central tennis club began their daily workouts under the watchful eye of Coach Ned Blass in his first year as mentor.

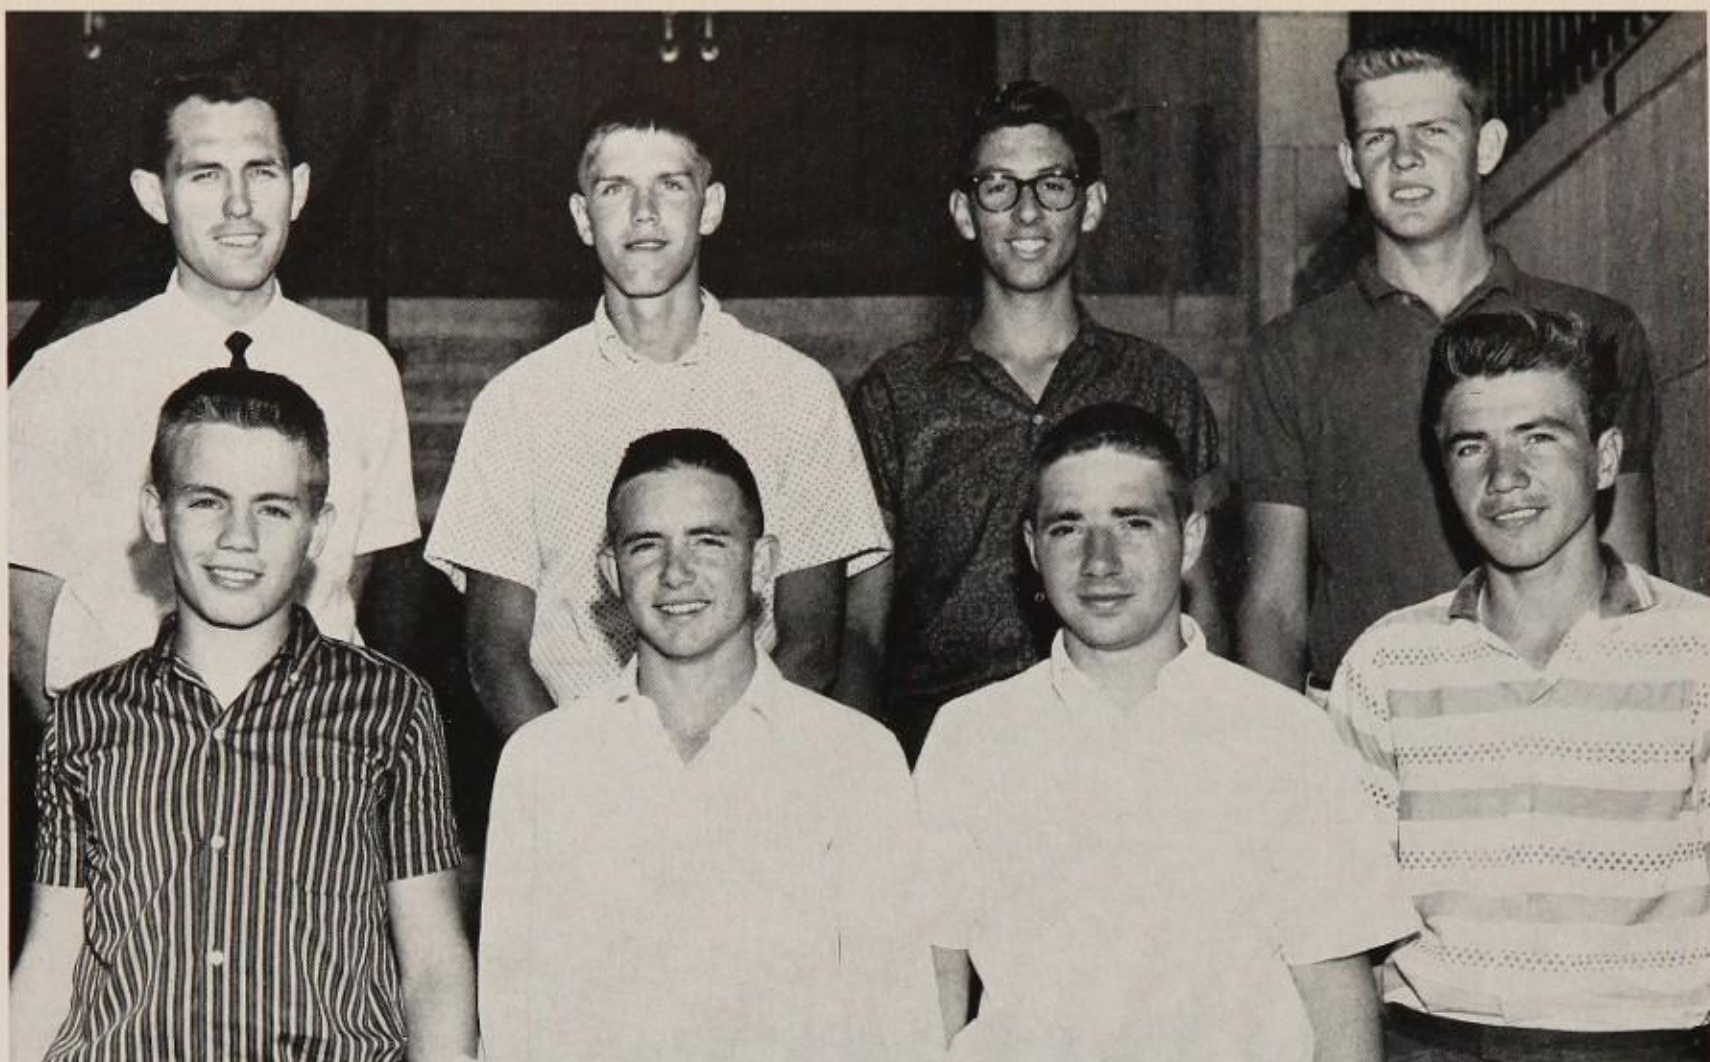

The first two matches caught the team off guard as they lost to Rogers and Muskogee. The next three encounters were victories for the team when they downed Hale, Bartlesville, and Edison. After losing another game to Rogers, the squad finished the season on a winning note by defeating Hale and Edison.

With a season record of five wins and three losses the netmen placed first in the district. Bill Austin and Phil Brown represented Central in the state meet at Norman.

The schedule opened with the golf team blasting their first three opponents—McLain 10-3, Webster 10-3, and Rogers 8½-4½. The 1960 parmen were headed by returning lettermen, Larry Bocox and Jerry Slack. Bocox, who was a consistant seventy shooter for Central, was medalist every time the Braves won the honor. In a return match with McLain, which Central won 12-1, Bocox holed a 180-yard second shot for a two under-par eagle on the number one hole at Tulsa Country Club.

With a season record of twelve wins and five losses, the city champion Central Braves took on Edison in the first game of the Class AA regional play-offs. In a pitcher's duel that lasted ten innings, the Braves clipped the Edison Eagles by a score of 1-0. Will Rogers, defending regional champions, was the next team to meet the Braves' hot bats, as Central downed the Ropers, 8-4. With the regional title won, the team beat the Bartlesville Wildcats in a 4-3 contest. The determined Braves defeated Oklahoma City Northwest, 7-1, to clinch the state championship baseball crown.

Returning lettermen from the state champion team included Richard Berry, Jim Seabolt, Bob Kelly, Frank Fox, Danny Smith and Richard Hoyle.

Charlie White and Roy Brewer display the skill which gained for them the honor of being declared state wrestling champions.

Standing before the official files of students enrolled, Miss Judy Duffell, secretary to the principal, and Miss Sally Neal, clerk, refer to cards for the schedules of Central students.

Cooking at the cafeteria stove, Mrs. Mae Lopez, one of the women who prepare food for 1200 students daily, adds the always-on-the-menu green beans to the big stew pan.

Proudly sitting in his new office on the first floor, Mr. Earl M. Sanders, building superintendent, places a necessary call to the boiler room to have a classroom thermostat regulated.

Camera catches two custodians—Mr. George A. Philippe, who takes time to snatch a glimpse of the basketball Braves in action, and Mrs. Nora Farrell, who goes about cleaning room 101 after the "Tom Tom" staff leaves.

Many People Employed To Look After School Routine

Mr. C. N. Moore, Jr., one of the many workmen repairing and redecorating Central, busily mixes plaster for room 110, which is perhaps one of the busiest places in school, for it houses the all-important candy machines.

Lawrence Hickman, custodial staff member and former graduate, sweeps to keep the stairways and corridors free from trash.

Student Performers Present 'Daze Of Enchantment'

Jeannie Koch, senior, reads the be-bop version of "Cinderella" as Judy Berry, Patti Gravette, and Marsha Vance enact the charming fairy tale by doing an entertaining tap dance.

Judy Rickman, Susan Montgomery, Vicki Brooks, Linda Lanning, Jan Reeher, Sally Price, Barbara Connors, Patti Bell, Lynda Eddings, Janelle Ward, Vicki Southgate, Ann Ehlers, Margot Rhodes, and Judy Lander, represent sunflowers.

Calypso and flamenco set the pace for the enchanting Daze. Lily Fox gives an example of her dancing grace and skill with a calypso number, while Frank Cervantes after years of training does a flamenco dance.

Ricki Brown, Gini Villines, Areta Gates, Judy Megee, Paulette Stewart, Carol Martin, Mary Ebenhack, Missy Martin, Jody Lambeth, Barbara Wall, Pat Gallagher, Marilyn Stilwell, and Pam Schwend are mystical bat people.

STARS IN OUR EYES, theme of the 1961 "Tom Tom," includes a searching for spiritual things. At the end of the school year Sharon Richardson and Don Bays pause before an open Bible to read passages which give them strength and understanding.

Though playing jacks in the school corridors is questionable senior behavior, Virginia Doty, Debby Jones, and Nancy Tracy have a spirited game of "pig in the pen," either to prolong their childhood days or to bring back memories of them during their daily lunch period.

Dear Diane,

It's been a real blast this year we've been together. We had some laughs, tears, anxieties, fears & a carload of prayers. All in all - we have been through a lot together. I'll never forget some of our all night, all morning card & study session. Yes, we've had everything this year except sleep!

It seems as though we're just now getting to know each other & you're already packin' out on us. Next year we're really gonna miss you & that excitable laugh of yours. I wish you all the luck in the world next year at O. U., and believe me, with that major you're gonna need it!

We'll have loads of fun next year, only not as often. Don't worry, we'll be down every once in a while to see you. And of course you'll be home every once in a while too. You'd better be anyway!

Central has the custom, known as the "Cherokee Run," of allowing the students to pick up their class enrollments for the following semester. Susie Burrell, who looks very weary, waits impatiently for the card permitting her into Mr. George Dorsch's science class.

Knowing that it pays to plan ahead, Bill Harges and Charles Crutchfield study the army's plans for specialized education.

Maybe someday we'll make the grade too.

Be good & lots of luck & best wishes for the future. God bless you & keep you.

Miki

Hi,

Well it's been a great year all over. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't stumbled into Mrs. Hunt's 6th hour class. Although I had to change at the semester it didn't make any difference in our friendship.

I really don't know what I would have done without you and Mick this year. We've been through all kinds of it but we seem to have survived.

You are a wonderful girl with a precious personality. It sure is going to be lonesome around here next year without you, but I figure it won't be so bad with you coming home every so often and you know Mick and I will be down at O. U. quite often.

Dear Diane,

I am sure that your charm and beauty will be your triumph over all obstacles that lie in your future path.
May God bless and keep you always.
